ROAD NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR BISHOP'S DEATH

How 17-year-old Arthur Bishop of Princeton street lost his life while assisting a young woman, Miss Elsie Lawrence, across the railroad tracks running over an embankment near the Silesia mills in North Chelmsford is described in an inquest report on the death of the young man made public today by Judge Pickman. The fatality occurred March 27, 1919.

Bishop was on his way to his work at the Silesia mills, the inquest states, and while walking along a path leading to the embankment met Miss Lawrence, also an employee at the North Chelmsford plant. They crossed the tracks together and as Bishop was assisting his companion over the farther side of the embankment he slipped and fell under the wheels of a passing freight train. He died shortly afterwards at St. John's hospital.

In summing up his report Judge Pickman finds that Bishop was a trespasser on the railroad tracks, and that his death was not caused or contributed to by the criminal negligence of the Boston & Maine railroad or its employees.

HOUSE BREAKERS RODE IN AUTO

Lowell police are still searching for two unknown men who broke into the home of Lewis P. Reed, 511 Lakewood avenue, a local fireman, early yesterday morning and stole several pieces of cut glass and wedding presents—and made good their escape when interrupted by the appearance of Mrs. Reed.

The two men, who were dressed in long black coats with the visors of their caps pulled low over their eyes, picked the lock on the front door and ransacked the drawers of a chiffonier in the dining room. They had just finished wrapping up the booty when Mrs. Reed, who was alone with her children upstairs, was awakened by the noise and came down the stairs to investigate.

Both men rushed to the front door and jumping into a waiting automobile, were soon out of sight. Mrs. Reed informed the police who have as yet been unable to find any clue to the identity of the thieves.

Harvard Brewery Pays Most Unique Stock Dividend in City's History

Several months ago, when John Barleycorn lost his grip, stockholders in breweries were not envied because of the latter's forced suspension, but today their friends are legion and the green-eyed monster of jealousy runs and stalks abroad—and all this with absolute prohibition only two days away.

The Harvard Brewery of this city has warmed the cockles of its stockholders' hearts by declaring a pro rata dividend payable in hard liquor that the brewery, it is stated, purchased some time ago for the protection of its retail customers, presumably to be able to supply their customers with hard liquors in the event of the war prohibition ban being lifted at a moment's notice. The ban, however, was not lifted, hence the unique dividend. It is stipulated in the notice received by the stockholders that they must take the goods away themselves; that the liquor must not be sold nor negotiated and a time limit is set for the removal of the "treasures."

It undoubtedly is the most novel stock dividend ever declared in Lowell, and it is not watered stock either which will be dispensed, but high proof liquors, and one naturally wonders what disposition the non-drinking stockholders will make of their liquid dividend.

Any list of stockholders, which might have been available in times past, is now absolutely unobtainable, for obvious reasons.

Thieves Operated in South End of Boston Again Last Night

Silks, Satins and Crepes Stolen—Motor Truck Used To Carry Away the Loot

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Silk thieves operated in the South End district again last night. Within a stone's throw of the scene of a $3000 silk robbery last week, the shop and loft of Mayers Dress Co., on Oxford street, was cleaned out of a stock of silks, satins and crepes valued at $15,000. The thieves obtained entrance by false keys. A motor truck was used to carry away the loot, the police believe.

DRIVER OF AUTOMOBILE NOT RESPONSIBLE

To have his shoulder fractured by being struck by the flying body of the driver of a motor-cycle, which was hurled through the air when the machine collided with his own automobile, was the experience of Carl Whitte of Nashua, N. H., according to an inquest report on the accident made public today by Judge Pickman. Jean Maynard, of Nashua, driver of the motor-cycle, was almost instantly killed. The accident occurred on the Tyngsboro boulevard Sept. 15.

Judge Pickman finds that the motor-cycle was travelling at an excessive rate of speed, and that Maynard's death was not caused or contributed to by the criminal negligence of Whitte in the operation of the automobile or by any other persons.

There can be no question as to the accommodation to those who live and work in a Manufacturing Community or to those who live in near-by towns by open hours all day and evening Saturday.

The wonderful wonder is, how has Lowell survived without Bank hours bent to the needs of the public since the time the Indians withdrew their deposits and left our shores.

COUNCIL BALKS AT STATE AUDIT

Denies Commissioner Salmon's Request For Audit of Water Department

Votes To Have Commissioner of Finance Designate Man To Conduct Audit

The request of Commissioner John F. Salmon of the water department that he be allowed to have an audit of the accounts of that department made by an official from the office of the state director of accounts was not granted by the municipal council this morning and instead the members voted to instruct the commissioner of finance to designate an auditor to conduct the regular annual audit of all the city's accounts, as required by law, and appropriated $1200 for that purpose. Commissioner Salmon did not vote on the matter.

The commissioner was anxious to have the state conduct the audit so that there would be no criticism of it but after receiving an opinion from the city solicitor in which he said that the commissioner of finance, and not the municipal council, was empowered to name the auditor, the council voted to have Commissioner Donnelly designate the man who shall audit not only the books of the water department but of all the municipal departments. Mayor Thompson pointed out that if Commissioner Salmon were not satisfied with the auditor chosen by Commissioner Donnelly, he might hire a man to do the work and pay for it out of his own department funds.

Commissioner Murphy said he hoped that the city would not be obliged to go to the expense of hiring two auditors and trusted that "the commissioner of finance would select a man suitable to Mr. Salmon." Whereupon Commissioner Donnelly immediately replied that he had had no regret because of any auditor he had previously hired and had heard no criticism of the work done.

The council also voted to approve the petition which junitors in the public buildings department are to submit to the legislature providing for their being pensioned at one-half pay after reaching the age of 60 and being in the service for 25 years. If the legislature passes the act, it will not become operative here until accepted by the council, but this morning's approval of the bill was necessary in order

WILL DRY DAYS BE SAD DAYS?

How Will the Advent of National Prohibition Affect City of Spindles?

"Faithless" Prohibited Except by the Man in the Moon—Lucky Guy!

When the sun begins creeping over Fort Hill park next Friday morning to start Lowell on another day of her career, it will look down upon a Lowell that has taken an arid oath destined to bind her until the end of her days to a high and dry, sent on that popular 1920 model—the water wagon.

It won't be a red-faced sun that will smile on the Spindle City Friday morning for the good and sufficient reason that extremely red faces will be out of style beginning that day. The vague of the flimsy complexion will be a thing of history, anyone who attempts it will be accused of a faux pas, for the grand and glorious era of faceless despatch will be upon us. On Friday, Jan. 16, the 15th amendment of the constitution, providing for the nation-wide prohibition, will go into effect.

How will the advent of national prohibition affect Lowell? It won't have any startling immediate effect because of the fact that the city has been virtually under prohibitory law since last July. War time prohibition has prepared Lowell as well as the rest of the country for the drought about to descend upon it. As far as can be learned, the only essential difference between the two forms of aridity is the amount of stringency surrounding their enforcement of the

Public Buildings' Janitors To Petition Legislature—Pensions Paid by City

The petition which the janitors of the public buildings department are about to submit to the legislature, providing for their being pensioned after they have given 25 years' service to the department and have reached the age of 60, lends interest to the amount of pensions already being paid out annually by the city.

According to figures furnished by City Auditor J. Joseph Hennessy, the city now pays out yearly $15,562.12 to former employees of various departments who have been placed on the pension list. Employees of the fire

Company Has Purchased Big Plant in Market Street

Sale Would Represent One of the Largest Real Estate Transactions in the City's History—Opening Wedge For Resumption of Business in One of Lowell's Biggest Plants

It is rumored that the huge plant of the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Co., covering a large area, with a frontage of several hundred yards on Market street and extending to the Merrimack canal at Dutton street, is in the process of transfer into the ownership of the American Woolen Co., and that its sale will entail a money consideration of upwards of $1,500,000. The property has an assessed valuation of $2,012,700.

If the sale goes through, it will constitute one of the largest real estate transactions in the city's history and will drive in the opening wedge for the resumption of industry in a plant which has long been considered a "white elephant" and an eye-sore to Lowell men who have the city's best interests at heart.

If the American Woolen Co. buys the property it will give that corporation control of five mills in and near Lowell, namely: the Hamshend at Middlesex Village, the Bay State Woolen in Lawrence street, the Beaver Brook mills at Collinsville, the Dracut Waste mill and the present Bigelow-Hartford plant.

Since the Bigelow-Hartford Co. vacated the buildings and removed its carpet manufacturing business to Thompsonville, Conn., and Clinton, some five years ago, the plant has never been utilized in its entirety.

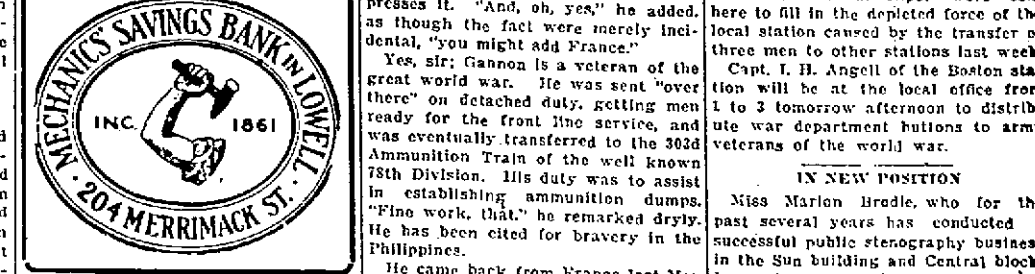

During the war the United States Cartridge company placed considerable of its overflow munitions manufacture there and leased much of its floor space but that industry died down with the coming of the armistice. Practically all of its cardboard containers for cartridges were made there and at present the U. A. Wood Co. is continuing the manufacture of candy boxes and the like.

The North Middlesex chapter of the Red Cross also occupied one of the buildings as work and storage rooms and centralized all its war activities there for many months. It was then a perfect hive of industry, but when the natural business depression came with the end of the war, Red Cross work also was curtailed and the floor space was given up. For a month or so during the latter part of 1919 an army store was operated there on one floor but that, too, soon completed its work. For fully two years prior to the war, however, and since November, 1912, the

PRIVATE GANNON STILL ON THE FIRING LINE

Private William F. Gannon, U.S.A., a Lowell boy, has come home to roost after a quarter of a century of service in the army, and this morning reported to Sgt. A. C. MacLeod of the local army recruiting station in the Mansur block for recruiting duty.

"It sure does seem good to get back to Lowell," said Gannon, who, although he has reached the age where most men would be willing to lead less strenuous lives than those required of men active in the service of the regular army, looks just as fit as the most youthful member of Uncle Sam's fighting men. "Tell the folks I've been at the game a long, long time and that I'm still going strong," he beamed as he started telling a little something about his experiences in the service. Gannon has re-enlisted innumerable times, but he expects to retire one year from the fifth of next March, when his present enlistment will expire.

Gannon got his early education in Lowell and has a number of relatives here. In the late nineties he succumbed to the attractions of Army life and has been in the uniform ever since.

He is a veteran of innumerable wars, uprisings, insurrections and just plain "scraps." He has seen service in Cuba, in the Philippines, at Panama and "several of the United States," as he expresses it. "And, oh, yes," he added, as though the fact were merely incidental, "you might add France."

Yes, sir; Gannon is a veteran of the great world war. He was sent "over there" on detached duty, getting men ready for the front line service, and was eventually transferred to the 303d Ammunition Train of the well known 78th Division. His duty was to assist in establishing ammunition dumps. "Fine work, that," he remarked dryly. He has been cited for bravery in the Philippines.

He came back from France last May and since then has been on recruiting duty in New Jersey and Boston. This morning he was assigned to Lowell to help out Sergeant MacLeod in rounding up Lowell young men for army service.

"You might extend an invitation from me to any of my friends who are thinking of entering the service to come down and talk the matter over. I have an interesting proposition to make."

Whereupon he got his orders for the day from Sgt. MacLeod, picked up a few belongings and strode forth to see Lowell as "she is" today and compare her with the Lowell of 25 years ago.

With Private Gannon came Private Charles E. Van Riper, a New York man, who has also seen considerable service.

Van Riper entered the army in May, 1909, and with the exception of a few years, has been in the service continually since that time. He has seen service in Cuba, the Philippines, Mexican border, Pacific coast and France. He went overseas with the 91st Division, a western outfit, made up of men from Montana and neighboring states. On March 10, 1919, he returned to this country with a casual outfit, having got his share of the warm things the battle zone had to offer and was sent to Camp Devens to assist in discharging troops. He was one of the men who oversaw the discharging of the Yankee division and it is possible that a number of Lowell 26th Division boys got their final example of army life from Van Riper. He was assigned to recruiting duty on Aug. 1 and has been in Boston since then. He is an expert rifleman. Although he is not acquainted with Lowell, he hopes with the assistance of his friend Gannon and Sergeant MacLeod to comb the city thoroughly in search for recruits.

Gannon and Van Riper were sent here to fill in the depleted force of the local station caused by the transfer of three men to other stations last week.

Capt. I. H. Angell of the Boston station will be at the local office from 1 to 3 tomorrow afternoon to distribute war department buttons to army veterans of the world war.

IN NEW POSITION

Miss Marion Bredle, who for the past several years has conducted a successful public stenography business in the Sun building and Central block, has entered upon her new duties as private secretary to L. C. van Riper of Boston. Mr. van Riper is a member of the New York and foreign stock exchange.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

One of the brightest shows of the year at the B. F. Keith theatre, this week, there appear Johnnie Ford and his Five Original Melody Makers in an act replete with dancing and music. Ford, the dancer, and his does more of it than any two other men that can be recalled. The mads sing and play the piano, of which there are five. The act is appropriately costumed and is decidedly entertaining. Ash and Hyams sing and talk in very modern fashion, and William Drew and Greenoline Dales offer a splendid comedy of their own conception. The Polka Girls are real gingersnap dancers who will infect a lot of life, and the Gluckers, in water juggling, are unusual. The rest of the bill includes Stanley & Dale, minstrels; the Brower trio, in melodies; Mims, Ayer, singer, and Charlie Chaplin's latest picture, "A Day's Pleasure."

OPERA HOUSE

The work of Walter Buckley, in his characterization of the member of the English nobility, in search of an American heiress, is the large comedy produced this week by the Lowell Players at the Opera House, is one of the bright spots in the presentation. Mr. Buckley plays a major portion of the humor-making scenes of the play and he does it in a manner that is winning and merited recognition from the audience. John Hec- kler is another member of the cast who is sharing in the honors and Miss Fielder, Miss Knowles, William McVillie and Jack Bennett are others who are worthy of special mention. See the play and laugh yourself tired.

THE STRAND

There are so many big features scheduled for the week that space hardly permits recording them at this time. Montagu Love, one of Lowell's biggest film favorites, will appear in person Thursday night only. He will appear on the stage and later will hold a reception to his many Lowell friends in the theatre lobby. He on hand and meet him. He is anxious to renew old acquaintances here. His last visit here, in company with June Bivander, will recall the many pleasant features of his appearance at The Strand. He is coming at the personal invitation of General Manager Scoville and earnest solicitation of his many admirers here. The management is pleased to announce that through a special arrangement the Chaplin comedy, "A Day's Pleasure," will be held over for the remainder of the week. This will be glad news to the many who were unable to attend The Strand during the first part of the week. And to add to the pleasures attending them at this time, there will be two other big features on the week-end program, beginning with matinee on Thursday. Alice Lake and an all-star cast will appear in "Should a Woman Tell?"

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have ringing, buzzing noises in your ears, or a hard of hearing and fear Catarrh of the Ears, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Jolans (double strength), add to it 1 quart of hot water and a little crystallized sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Closed nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to take, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrh of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Adv.

dramatic, intensely human story of a New England fisher girl faced with the problem of whether to reveal or not to the man she loved more than her life, the secret of her youth. It's a high-grade, dramatic screen offering, that is sure to appeal to all.

Peggy Hyland, another big local screen favorite, in "The Web of Chance," will be seen on the same bill, and the remainder of the program will be rounded out with a new comedy and the latest Universal Weekly.

Next week the Mack Bennett Bathing Girls will appear in person, in connection with the film feature, "Another Bundle in Berlin." The double novelty, a dazzling combination of feminine loveliness and a filmed satire of consoling, yet heroically patriotic plot, will be revealed to amusement seekers when this feature is presented. It is being shown here for the first time outside of the big theatrical centres and will unquestionably attract capacity audiences at all performances.

THE OWL THEATRE

Today's performance are the last for Charlie Chaplin in "A Day's Pleasure," which with Bessie Barriscale in "Reckoning Roads" and Guy Emery in "The Emancipator," have been turning them away at the Owl Theatre. So often, it has been said, that this show and that show should be seen that the public is not inclined to take it seriously but in all seriousness it can be said of this show, that to miss it will be to regret it. There are four showings of Chaplin at 1, 1.15, 4, 4.15, 7 and 9.35 and being continuous there is no chance of missing any of them.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of appetite, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send 10 cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention The Sun.—Adv.

thing. Patrons arriving by 7.30 in the evening see the entire program.

Scheduled for Thursday are two big favorites. The first deals with the well known adage, Beatrice Michelina in "The Heart of Juanita" in six parts is the added attraction. Pathe News and Hall Room Boys will supply the fun.

When crook meets crook it is highly probable that some of the super-wealthy are going to be relieved of a portion of their surplus riches. But in "Burglar by Proxy" Jack Pickford's latest picture which will be shown beginning Thursday, one of the crooks is a conscientious objector.

As Jack Robin, wealthy man, in love with Dorothy Mason, Pickford plays the part of a boy who turns burglar to recover business money stolen from Dorothy's father by her fiancé.

Jack's alliance with Spider, a notorious housebreaker, leads him into a series of complications which always make him appear before Dorothy as a thief despite her earnest desire to believe he is a respectable youth.

Dorothy hears him tell Jack about the robbery and she then confronts Jack with the information that she now is convinced that he is a full-fledged thief. Jack's denials are not with contempt by Dorothy who informs him that unless he returns the articles immediately she will report him to the police. Jack does some quick thinking, smashes an expensive stained glass window, dishevels his hair and invents a weird story about his "sister" catching a thief. The story is swallowed "whole" by members of the party. But Dorothy is more convinced than ever that he is a crook. It is too much story of an honest young man, she decides.

THE MAPLES HOLD FIRST ANNUAL

The first annual dancing party under the auspices of the Maples, a club with quarters in Coburn street, was held last evening in Polish hall at the corner of Lakeview avenue and Coburn street, and the affair was attended by about 500 people, all of whom spent a most enjoyable evening. In the early part of the evening concert numbers were given by the orchestra and during intermission musical selections were given by James Corrigan and Thomas Doyle.

The officers of the evening were as follows: James Cawley, general manager; James Carroll, assistant general manager; Thomas Doyle, floor director; J. Porter, assistant floor director; John O'Hare, chief aid, and William Chell, treasurer.

The officers of the club are: John Cawley, president; Arthur Roddy, vice president; William Chell, treasurer and John Livingston, secretary.

LOWELL NORMAL SCHOOL

Commissioner of Education

Recommends Purchase of Land For Future Growth

(Special To The Sun)

STATE HOUSE, Boston, Jan. 14.—Purchase of a tract of land comprising 115,214 square feet, adjoining the State Normal school at Lowell, is recommended by Payson Smith, the commissioner of education, in a special report submitted to the legislature this afternoon.

This land referred to is what is known as the Parker estate, and Commissioner Smith recommends that it be purchased in order to make adequate provision for future growth of the normal school, as well as for protecting the present property of the state. His report is as follows:—

"In conformity with chapter 23 of the General Acts of 1913, I beg to make the following report with reference to the feasibility and desirability of the purchase of land for the use of the State Normal school at Lowell.

"The Lowell school occupies a tract of land containing 142,557 square feet. This area, while fairly adequate for the present needs of the school, does not make possible any extension of the activities of the institution.

"All of the State Normal schools, with the exception of Lowell, Salem, and the Massachusetts Normal Art school, have dormitories. Provision for dormitory accommodations is a generally recognized means of stimulating attendance at normal schools and of increasing their influence and the efficiency of their work. At present it does not appear necessary to erect a dormitory in Lowell. Should the area from which the schools draw their students expand, and the enrollment increase, it would then probably become necessary to erect a dormitory. In this event additional land will be needed.

"As compared with the area available for campus in connection with State Normal schools in general, and in comparison with other State Normal schools in Massachusetts, the campus surrounding the State Normal school at Lowell is considerably restricted. An extension of this area would increase the value of the school's work as determined by those activities that can be carried on out of doors.

"Adjacent to the tract of land now owned by the state is the so-called Parker estate, comprising an area of 115,214 square feet. This is the only contiguous land now available for an extension of the property of the Normal school. The Bay State Cotton Corporation has purchased a tract of land separated from the Normal school by the Parker estate. The erection of a factory and warehouses by this corporation has brought a large industrial development into close proximity with the school. It is reasonable to suppose that this development will stimulate the sale of any available land adjacent to the property of the corporation.

"It would seem desirable, therefore, as a means of providing for possible extensions of the school and for the purpose of securing adequate protection for the property of the state, that a part, or all, of the Parker estate be acquired by the Commonwealth."

EXTRA REVOLVER AT POLICE STATION

Over at the Lowell police station—where revolvers of every size and description can usually be found—there is today a small .22-calibre pistol. It isn't loaded and it's not in particularly good condition; one doubts if it could be fired at all. But this self-same little "gal" caused considerable excitement late yesterday when a little lad at the Varnum school suddenly whipped it from his pocket and pointed it at one of his playmates.

No one knows where he got it, because he wouldn't tell. Anyway, the teacher told the janitor, the janitor phoned the police, and now the revolver is at the station aforesaid, where it will probably remain.

CATARRH DOES HARM

Whether It Is of the Nose, Throat, or Other Organs, Get Rid of It.

Catarrh of the nose or throat when it becomes chronic weakens the delicate lung tissues, deranges the digestive organs, and may lead to consumption. It impairs the taste, smell and hearing, and affects the voice. It is a constitutional disease and requires a constitutional remedy.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which by purifying the blood removes the cause of the disease and gives permanent relief. This alternative and tonic medicine has proved entirely satisfactory to thousands of families in three generations.

If there is biliousness or constipation, take Hood's Pills—they are a thorough cathartic, a gentle laxative.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton.

"Bzz-z-z-z!" Nancy and Nick heard the telephone wire buzzing beside them. That meant Mr. and Mrs. Someone was calling Mr. and Mrs. Someone Else.

The twins had climbed to the very top of a telephone pole (green shoes helping, and magical mushroom guiding.) They had an idea, and a very good one it was, although it never occurred to them that they were cavers-row, in a pleased voice. "I've got a treat for you. Jake just sewed some white lettuce seed in the garden, and then watered it, so hurry over before the sun dries it. Good-bye."

"Bzz-z-z-z!" went the wire, ringing off.

Then the twins climbed down the pole as quickly as they could and ran to the house. Next they ran into the garden with something and were ever so busy for a while.

When Mr. and Mrs. Si Sparrow and family arrived, Mrs. Sally Sparrow was sitting up in a tree scolding for dear life; for right over the lettuce bed was an old wire window screen. No delicious seeds for them that day; (Copyright, 1920, N.E.A.)

When The Day Is Over

When the household cares and the worries of everyday life have dragged you down, made you unhappy, and there is nothing in life but

Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakness, bearing-down pains, irregularities, pelvic inflammation, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it, in liquid or tablet form.

"THEN-A SOLDIER."

THE returned Soldier having been stirred into fighting action by martial music has discovered its genuine value. Music with true tone holds for him indescribable charm.

Opera with its historic background—sweet ballads of by-gone days—stirring marches that thrill his soul! These, together with the popular jazz dances, are all perfectly reproduced on The Brunswick.

When The Brunswick made its advent into the world of music a sensation was recorded. New day phonograph music had come at last! This was made possible by the Brunswick Method of Reproduction, composed of two scientific features—the Ultona and the Tone Amplifier.

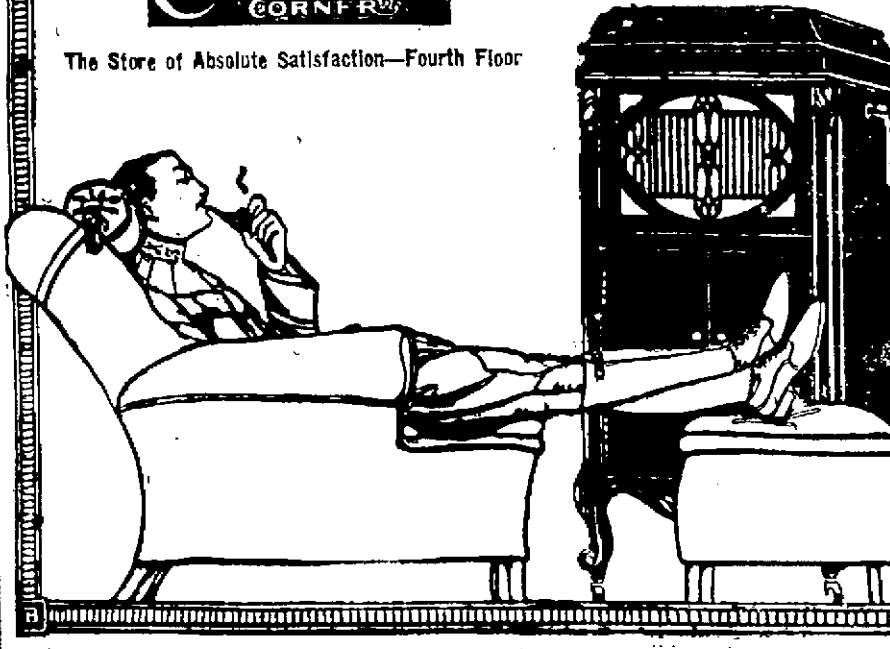

The ULTONA plays all records truer, finer, sweeter. It is not a makeshift contrivance but involves a genuine principle of sound. A slight turn of the hand presents the right needle, diaphragm and weight for playing any record.

The TONE AMPLIFIER is an oval shaped vibrant tone chamber. Like the sound board of a fine piano or violin it is made entirely of wood and free from metal. Thus it gives the requisite tonal volume and eliminates all harsh, thin, metallic sounds. It meets all advanced acoustical and musical laws.

Coolidge Not To Act in Controversy

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Governor Coolidge today wrote the chamber of commerce at Peabody that he was without power to interfere in the controversy in which the public trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street railway, jitney operators and the city are involved.

Many Killed and Wounded

a protest against the industrial council's bill, now before the reichstag, began to gather before noon. Soon every street leading to the Tiergarten was crowded with masses of people carrying red flags and placards. Anticipating a demonstration before the reichstag building, the authorities had surrounded the building with public security guards and machine guns, who barred all approaches. As time passed the crowd was joined by striking tram employees and soon inflammatory speeches were begun by agitators.

Machine Guns Used

Attempts were made by the guards to disperse the mob, but it was heedless of warnings from the police. At last the mob, regardless of the machine gunners and other defenders of the building, made a rush against the police lines, trying to disarm the guards and disable the machine guns. When it was seen the mob could not be checked in any other way, the guards opened fire. The shooting was at close range and the front of the building was littered with dead and wounded. The most severe casualties were inflicted on the crowd which approached from the Simonstrasse side of the structure. Order was soon restored.

10 Bodies Picked Up

The reichstag continued its sitting until 5 o'clock, at which time it was announced 10 bodies of persons killed in the fight had been brought into the court of the building.

Rifle and machine gun fire was opened on the mob at 3:40 o'clock and lasted five minutes. It was most severe around the west portal of the building. Later the correspondent of the Associated Press counted at least 20 men lying in the outskirts of the Tiergarten, apparently wounded. When the troops began firing the crowd ran in all directions. At the sound of the guns, members of the lower house of the reichstag left the assembly chamber and crowded into the lounging room, where there was intense excitement.

General Firing Began

Provocation for firing upon the crowd was furnished by its attempt to storm the west entrance of the building. A score of men attacked several guards and wrenched their rifles away from them just as soldiers rushed up, and then general firing began. When the mob ran into the street fronting the south side of the edifice, soldiers stationed there suspected they would be attacked and immediately opened a fusillade. Six slightly wounded civilians were carried into the reichstag building, a dozen others were transferred to the guard house near the Brandenburg gate and a number were carried off by members of the sanitary corps.

Reichstag Adjourned

The reichstag temporarily adjourned amid great confusion. President Fehrenbach being obliged to leave the chair as he was unable to control the situation. Members of various parties engaged in violent recriminations, and members of the cabinet left the chamber. A shot fired from a point directly in front of the Bismarck monument entered the huge glass door leading to the lobby which was crowded with agitated deputies, the bullet passing a few feet from the spot where the correspondent was in conversation with Herr Stresemann, a national-liberal member of the reichstag.

When the troops dispersed, the crowd outside the building swarmed into the Unter den Linden.

After a short recess, the house visibly quieted down, and President Fehrenbach, rising from his seat, told the deputies the day's casualties had reached a total which would occasion profound regret, and that further deliberations could, under the circumstances, hardly be expected to continue with the necessary calm. He suggested an adjournment until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The deputies received the announcement standing and then left the chamber.

Independent socialist leaders plan to continue demonstrations whenever the industrial council's bill is up for debate, and it is expected the climax will be reached on Thursday, which is the anniversary of the deaths of Dr. Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, radical leaders, who were slain while being taken to Moabit prison.

The entente missions arriving here today are reported to have indicated their intention to call upon their governments for military protection if demonstrations here are threatening.

While the number of dead was announced as 10 early this evening, it seems probable that the fatalities will exceed this total. Some of the wounded lay in the Tiergarten for a considerable time after the shooting, although many were carried off quickly by the sanitary corps and placed in nearby hospitals.

As the national assembly was holding its sitting in the chamber, in the inner centre of the big granite pile, the assembly members heard only faint reports of the shots that were fired. Gradually news of the clash reached the chamber and an exodus followed into the corridors, into which a score of men from the mob succeeded in penetrating and immediately started a general harangue. Up to the press gallery the excitement was equally intense.

One Soldier Killed

The government admits the loss of one member of the troop of guards, killed in the fighting, while several are missing.

The big oak-paneled door which gives access to the west wing of the reichstag building was smashed during the attempted rush. It was the prompt resistance of the public security troops on guard that prevented an entrance which would result in the invasion of the chamber by the mob. Through this door a large calibre bullet fired from the ranks of the mob found its way and also passed through a second door into the lobby, crowded with members.

Meeting in Detail

The meeting was called at 10:10 with all members present.

The following citizens were chosen for jury service at the superior court now in session in Cambridge, beginning Jan. 29, Commissioner Salmon drawing the names:

John H. Kivian, 73 Moore, book-keeper.

Napoleon Grandchamps, 12 Arthur avenue, clerk.

Wm. J. McCluskey, 7 Keene, reporter.

A communication from the City Teamsters' union asked for a daily wage of $5 to become effective as soon as possible. The letter was laid on the table with the understanding it will be considered at a later date.

The mayor said that he had received a similar request informally from members of the health department. All of these requests will be considered at a public hearing later.

Supt. Redmond Welch of the police department reported favorably on a petition for a certificate of incorporation from the Liberty Square Social and Athletic club and the matter was referred to the secretary of the commonwealth.

A vote offered by the commissioner of finance appropriating $17,272 from the general treasury for the liquidation of accounts and bills owed by the city for the fiscal year of 1919 was passed without dissent. The mayor explained that this money is surplus revenue for 1919.

Approve Janitors' Pension Bill

The council voted to approve the petition of the janitors of the public buildings department that the city accept an act for their pensioning. The mayor said that this act was exactly like that accepted by last year's council for the janitors of the school department. The council will have to accept the act, if it is passed by the legislature, before it will become operative.

The city solicitor submitted the following opinion relative to the order introduced at yesterday's meeting providing for an audit of the water department by the state director of accounts.

In re: matter of vote petitioning the director of accounts of the department of corporations and taxation of Massachusetts for such an audit of the accounts of the water department of the city of Lowell as may be necessary to make a report of the financial accounts of said department, said vote having been referred to the city solicitor.

In 1919 the legislature by act provided that cities and towns could petition the director of the bureau of statistics to audit the accounts of cities and towns and install systems therein.

Section 35, of chapter 615, of the acts of the year 1911 provides among other things that the commissioner of finance "At the end of the municipal year" shall cause a complete examination of all books and accounts of the city to be made by competent accountants.

Chapter 706, acts of 1913, section 2, amending the act of 1910 above referred to provides in part "Any city of the commonwealth may, by vote of its city council, petition the director of the bureau of statistics for an audit of its accounts" or for the installation of an accounting system to be approved by him, and in case a statute or an ordinance requires any city official or commission to cause an audit of the city's accounts to be made, such official or commission may petition said director for the audit, and said director, as soon as possible after the receipt of such petition, shall cause such audit to be made. * * *

It appears that the legislature intended in chapter 615, section 35, of the acts of 1911 that the officer designated as the commissioner of finance should annually by competent accountants make a complete and exhaustive examination of all books and accounts of the city. It is clear by the language employed by the legislature that it is his mandatory duty to comply with such provision. This provision of chapter 615, acts of 1911 was enacted by the legislature subsequent to the act of 1910 above referred to.

C. 706, acts of 1913, enacted subsequently to said chapter 615, acts of 1911, clearly evidences the intent of the legislature in recognizing the existence of such an officer as is provided in section 35, chapter 615, acts of 1911, and clearly states that such an officer may petition the director of accounts for an audit to be made.

Having no knowledge of the matter referred to this department other than such as is contained in the vote, I have not examined or discussed the relationship of the municipal council to the commissioner of finance in the matter of audits.

In view of the various acts of the legislature herein referred to, it would appear that the commissioner of finance is the proper officer of the city to request the audit to be made by the director of accounts, and not the municipal council.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM D. REGAN,
City Solicitor.

"The conclusion there," the mayor said, "is that the commissioner of finance is the man to have the audit made. If the auditor chosen by the commissioner of finance doesn't satis-

"Newsies" Ball at Associate

Hall Was Big Event—

Everybody Happy

Extra! Extra! Extra!!!

Read all about it!

Several hundred Lowell people missing from their homes last evening!

They went to the Newsboys' first annual ball in Associate hall.

And they all had a "wonderful" time. "Newsies" from the four corners of the city were among "those present."

Mayor and Mrs. Perry D. Thompson and members of the city government were there, too.

The proceeds of the ball will go towards the forming of a real, live, up-to-the-minute newsboys' organization in Lowell, with clubrooms in the downtown district.

But to return to the ball itself, or rather, to the concert program which preceded dancing.

First number was given by Albert Bean, who sang "Little French Mother of Mine."

Johnny Smiler came next with "I Know What It Means to Be Lonesome." You've got nothing on us, Johnny—we've been lonesome ourselves.

"Patsy" Sullivan, far-famed newsboy soprano, closed the program with "Carolina Sunshine." The choruses were sustained by a sextet composed of

LEO DEIGNAN
General Manager

Paul Joseph and Thomas Gallagher, James Riley, Paul McDermott and James McDermott.

And then every "newsie" who had arrived at the age of long trousers—as well as some who hadn't—picked out a Lowell miss and guided her through the mazes of walls, one-step and fox trot.

Forgotten were the long cold hours during which an armful of papers must be sold; forgotten, too, the fact that long before Old Sol climbed wearily over the hills tomorrow they will be trailing the milkmen with their wares—what did it matter what the morrow might bring when one could glide over a polished floor with the only girl throughout the too short hours?

And so the "newsies" of the Spindle City—and they don't make them any better—danced away the evening to the music of the jazz band chartered for the occasion, and a crowd of the city's young people, who had journeyed to the hall to see what manner of enter-tainers these self-same "newsies" were, danced along with them until the stroke of midnight brought the ball to an end.

The "newsies" who hadn't grown quite high enough to attempt to hold their own on a ballroom floor—and there were hundreds of these—occupied "reserved" seats in the balcony. The price of admission meant nothing in their young lives, for weren't they the "honored guests" of the management? And during intermission, when the ice cream began to circulate, every little "newsie" got a heaping plate—and some got more.

The decorations were all that could be desired. Handsome streamers of red, white and blue bunting were suspended from the balconies, and the stage was arrayed in gala dress with potted palms, greenery and American flags the predominating features.

General manager of the ball was Leo Deignan, who needs no introduction to Lowell folks who daily pass through Merrimack square en route to business, home or theatre. The same can be said of Dennis A. Murray, floor director, whose "beat" also embraces the territory adjacent to the city's busiest corner.

Irving W. Michael served most efficiently as assistant general manager, and the assistant floor director was David Rosenberg.

George Cohen, our program informs us, played the role of "chief aid," and other aids were James Riley, Samuel Rosen, Paul Gallagher, Edward Gaff, Israel Goldman and Charles McCuskey.

ALL-FOR-LOWELL DINNER
MONDAY EVENING

The second big gathering in connection with the expansion and reorganization campaign of the Lowell board of trade is the All-for-Lowell dinner to be held in Memorial hall next Monday evening. With a wealth of out of town speakers, guaranteed to leave impressions similar to that created by George Dugan of Albany at last week's smoke talk, the dinner will be one of the most brilliant civic affairs the city ever has enjoyed.

Invitations have been sent alike to men and women and it is expected that fully 500 citizens will answer the call. With the invitations have been sent re-mailing post cards securing reservations and the committee in charge urges prompt decision that its work may be simplified as much as possible.

Lowell has undertaken to capitalize the spirit of co-operation and service developed by the war-throughout the organization of a vital central body, with a new outlook which will be community-wide in membership and service and the dinner next Monday evening will fire a perfect salvo of big guns to inaugurate the intensive drive for membership which winds up the campaign next week.

The American city bureau, in charge of the campaign, has secured three men who are widely known throughout the country for their force and ability, to put over a thought which will stick. They are Glenn Frank of New York city, Dr. Frank Crane and Champ S. Andrews.

Mr. Frank will speak on "The New Spirit in Business." He is considered an authority on business, community and chamber of commerce questions. He was associated recently with Edward A. Filene of Boston in planning for the discussion of after-the-war problems at the international congress of chambers of commerce. While his name may not be a household word in Lowell, his reputation is far reaching.

Dr. Crane is a nationally known editorial writer and speaker. He is noted for his unusual manner of presentation, delightful humor and wholesome philosophy.

Mr. Andrews is one of the leading textile manufacturers of the south. He is a resident of Chattanooga and has a large mill there, as well as banking and business interests in Porto Rico. He is enthusiastically interested in the modern type of civic-commercial organization.

There also will be local speakers, limited in time to 10 minutes. The committee in charge, headed by Paul H. Chandler, has arranged for good singing and other entertainment and delightful social intercourse will be afforded.

"What about the permanence of the Lowell chamber of commerce?" said Louis Buddy, director of the campaign today.

"In the minds of those who have examined the plans of the campaign, there is of course, no such question," he continued. "However, others have and will ask it, and I am glad of the opportunity to point out certain obvious facts."

"A chamber of commerce is an organization whose life depends upon the activity and co-operation of its membership. A board of directors without the support of the membership is impotent. Consequently the plan of organization of a chamber of commerce which looks forward to permanence and constantly increasing strength, must deal first, fast and all the time with the membership."

"One gentleman remarked the other day after a careful discussion of the plans for expanding the chamber of commerce, that the program adopted is in many respects the reverse of that which has been followed heretofore in some places."

"The new members who will join the reorganized board of trade will be eager and insistent that the new body do something. It has been the practice in some chamber of commerce campaigns, after the members have been enlisted, to promptly forget them. After this campaign not a day will elapse before the call will go out for members to elect the directors. As soon as this is done and the officers have been chosen the members will again be called upon to answer the question: 'What is the chamber of commerce going to do?'"

"When each member of the chamber has made his or her answers to this question, the membership as a whole will have given the directors a well defined program to which they are pledged."

"The next question before the membership is 'Who will carry this program through?' Again the answer must come from the membership. The board of directors is a directing body and the membership is a working body."

"Out of the program of work will come carefully defined specific tasks for the committees to do. There will be no standing committees and no waiting committees. Each assignment that is given to a committee will be explicit in directing what is to be done and when, and it is the business of the manager of the chamber, of the president, and of the board of directors to see that the committees keep steadily on their jobs."

"The only way to insure the permanence of a voluntary organization of men is to keep them busy and interested. When a man has served on a committee or accomplished some specific service for the community he is proud of it. He becomes an interested and loyal member of the chamber, ready to respond to any call that comes to him. A man working on a committee for some particular purpose is brought into intimate touch with associated problems of the community that demand attention; so that no man can work in a chamber of commerce without gaining a wider vision of the city's needs and a constantly growing interest and loyalty to the larger purposes of the organization of which he is a member."

"The ways and means that have been discovered to make effective the voluntary service of a large group of citizens are the result of long study and experience. They have within the last two or three years been given something akin to scientific analysis and definition and have worked into a definite organization program."

"The executive management of the chamber of commerce will naturally conduct a well defined program for all the activities of the chamber for the benefit of the whole community; it should give quick response to all inquiries and requests of the members and should keep the citizens informed as to what other progressive cities in the state of the competitive field are doing and how they are doing it."

"These are the plans that make the chamber of commerce permanent. These are the plans that will govern the modern chamber of commerce which Lowell will have at the conclusion of the campaign."

EX-MAYOR HOWARD
OF SALEM DEAD

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 11.—Arthur P. Howard, a former mayor of Salem, Mass., died at the New Haven hospital last week, following an operation for intestinal trouble. The burial was at Woodlawn cemetery, N. Y., on Saturday. Mrs. Howard, who survives, lives in West Haven.

Mr. Howard had been taken ill with intestinal trouble and was under treatment at a sanitarium in West Haven. Last Thursday an emergency operation was deemed necessary, but after this was performed, the patient did not rally.

Mr. Howard came to this city during the war and was employed in the paymaster's department of a local munitions plant.

NEW JERSEY BARS
JACK DEMPSEY

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 11.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion pugilist, will not be permitted to participate in any boxing contests in the state of New Jersey. John S. Smith, president of the New Jersey athletic commission, announced last night.

"Jack Dempsey, prize fighter, is not good enough for the state of New Jersey," he added. The state commission, he continued, supported the action of various posts of the American legion in branding the champion as "a stack-er."

Mr. Smith compared the "war record" of Dempsey who, he said, acted as a labor scout for a ship yard, with that of Georges Carpentier, the French champion who risked his life in battle and won the highest possible honors.

"All red-blooded Americans should blush with shame when Dempsey's war record is mentioned," he concluded.

PRIVATE MAGUIRE HONORED

Private James H. Maguire of Co. G of the state guard was the guest of honor at a dinner held last evening by the members of that company at Page's restaurant. Private Maguire is about to leave Lowell to accept a responsible position in New York state. Thirty-five members of the company were present and Private Hugh J. Molloy was toastmaster. Brief addresses were made by the toastmaster, Corp. Alvah Sturgess, Private James Stauter Murphy, Capt. Edward Fisher, Capt. Royal P. White, Cook Dudley L. Page and Private Maguire. The guest of the evening was presented an appropriate remembrance by Capt. White on behalf of those present and he responded fittingly.

Sec. Glass Orders Adoption of Distinctive Design For Future Issues of Currency

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—In order to circumvent counterfeiting and denationalization, Secretary Glass has ordered adoption of a distinctive design for all future issues of currency. It was announced today. This standardization, Mr. Glass believes, would serve as a safeguard against "one of the greatest dangers to the treasury and to the public because of the multiplicity of designs now in use." The denationalization portraits prescribed for the future, some of which are now in use, are: $1, Washington; $2, Jefferson; $5, Lincoln; $10, Jackson; $20, Cleveland; $50, Grant; $100, Franklin; $500, Marshall; $1000, Hamilton; $10,000, Chase.

URGE REMOVAL OF SKEFFINGTON

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Denial by Immigration Commissioner Henry J. Skeffington that he threatened "to get the Harvard Liberal club" in a speech Monday night before the Massachusetts Press association, and a rejoinder by the club in the form of a letter to Washington asking his removal, were the developments in the controversy yesterday. In a letter to Secretary William B. Wilson of the department of labor in Washington, the Harvard Liberal club charged that Immigration Commissioner Skeffington "has lost his head, has proved incompetent and has brought your administration into disrepute."

TO REGULATE BAKERY WORKERS' HOURS

STATE HOUSE, Boston, Jan. 14.—Representative Owen E. Brennan of Lowell has filed petitions for, Charles J. Hodgeson, legislative agent for the Massachusetts State Branch, A. F. of L., for legislation to regulate the hours of employment of bakery workers and to license janitors in charge of any building of three or more apartments. The bill relative to bakery workers provides that except in cases of emergency it shall be unlawful to make bakery goods in a bakery, bakery, hotel, restaurant or club between the hours of eight o'clock in the evening and four o'clock in the morning. In cases of emergency where serious suffering, loss, damage or public inconvenience are threatened, the chief of police of any city or town may issue a permit allowing the prohibited work to be done in the prohibited hours. Such a permit shall be valid only during the twelve hours after the time it is issued. The second bill filed states that persons in charge of buildings containing three or more apartments must pass an examination and secure a license from the city or town clerk to perform the duties ordinarily performed by janitors. All persons so employed at the time the act takes effect are to receive a license without the examination required by the act.

MORE PENSION BILLS

It seems that another pension drive is on, not only in Lowell but in other cities of this state.

Before the legislature are bills providing for the pensioning of municipal laborers. The school janitors of Lowell have caught the craze and are having a special bill introduced to authorize the city to establish a pension system for their benefit.

It appears, according to the statement of Commissioner Murphy, that the endorsement of the council is necessary in order to have a bill of this kind introduced in the legislature at this time. If the commissioners give their approval of such a measure in the initial stage, it is to be expected that they will adopt the law if enacted, and put the new pension scheme into operation.

We sincerely believe it is time to call a halt on this pension business. On inauguration day, Mayor Thompson pleaded for economy, and it remains to be seen whether he and his fellow commissioners have any intention of practicing economy.

These pension bills will furnish a positive test of the sincerity of such professions. It may be that some of the commissioners are indebted to the school janitors for political service; but the taxpayers do not want to be mulcted for payment of such political debts in perpetuity.

It is very nice to be retired on a pension at the age at which Dr. Osler allowed that a man's usefulness had been seriously impaired. There are a great many people who would like to draw pensions at the expense of others. At present, the city is obliged to pay pensions to police officers and firemen. Both crafts have to encounter many dangers in the performance of their duty, and it has become a very general custom among municipalities throughout the country to pension both classes of public servants.

The next class most entitled to pensions is the school teachers, who give their lives to the work of training the youth of our city for careers of usefulness; but the teachers are not pensioned at the expense of the city. They have a pension system of their own which they pay for out of their rather scant earnings, as a protection against the time when they will no longer be able to work.

Would it not be somewhat provoking for the teachers to find that their services were overlooked and that the high-minded members of the municipal council voted to grant pensions to school janitors? It is worthy of note that these pension bills provide that the law becomes operative when adopted by the municipal council. All such questions should be submitted to the voters of the city in a general referendum. If the adoption rests with the council, the politicians will find a means of slipping it through despite all opposition.

The taxpayers and the voters in general have to pay these pensions and they feel that their present burdens are all they can bear. If the municipal council pushes up the taxes much farther, the small taxpayers may soon have to dispose of their property.

Pensions thus provided must be contributed in great part by men who work in factories and elsewhere, and who are themselves more in need of help than the classes to whom the pensions are paid.

It is up to the members of the municipal council to protect the interests of the city against the extension of pension systems at a time when the tax rate is bounding upward and when economy was never so imperative. Let city employees be adequately paid for their services; but call a halt on pensioning.

RECOGNIZE LITHUANIA

The ancient province of Lithuania, which was mainly under Russian rule before the war, has now been organized as a separate state under a republican form of government, and appeals to the United States for recognition. Already, this new republic has been recognized by England and will probably soon be recognized by other European powers. It has all the distinctive characteristics of a nationhood which entitle it to self-determination under the decision of the peace conference.

The Lithuanians are a very ancient people forming, as they do, an offshoot of the eastern branch of the Indo-European family and one of the Baltic groups which included also the Prussian and the Lettish. The present population is probably from four to five millions. It has been greatly reduced by the war and had been previously depleted by emigration which was directed to parts of Russia, Germany, South Africa, South America and the United States. The Lithuanians are strong in this country, particularly in Pennsylvania, New York and Chicago. In New York city there are 40,000 Lithuanians, and in Chicago, 80,000, while it is estimated that the total number in this country is at least 750,000. The Lithuanians are a rugged people and generally employed in the leading industries of the country, including the coal mines, the iron works and textile factories. In Lowell, there are probably 1000 Lithuanians. They have recently protested against the Polish invasion and appealed for justice.

Recently, it appears that Polish forces have been encroaching on parts of Lithuania with the result that the Lithuanians have appealed to the peace conference and to the United States to put a stop to the Polish invasion. It is rather surprising that Poland, after securing her own freedom, should do anything to hinder or prevent a neighboring state from obtaining a like privilege. In view of the large number of Lithuanians in this country and the justice of the Lithuanian cause, we do not see any reason why the United States should not recognize this struggling republic and thus rescue it from Polish dominance on the one hand, or Bolshevik oppression on the other.

BRYAN AND THE PARTY

The republican politicians are now indulging in speculation as to what will be Mr. Bryan's course in the democratic convention. Of course, no such convention can be held without the presence of the Nebraska orator. He will be there, whether he is wanted or not, and furthermore, he can be relied upon to do more talking than any other delegate present, but that does not mean that he is to turn wrecker, as the republicans vainly would believe. He has declared that he is not a candidate for president and if he keeps to his word in this respect, then the danger of a split in the convention, so far as he is concerned, may be set down as a negligible quantity.

The republican assumption that the democrats may be relied upon to make fools of themselves has little to rest upon these days; and still less, if possible, is there to sustain the arrogant claim of the republicans that they are the only party in the nation that can conduct the government business with statesmanlike sagacity and foresight.

The days of the big trusts are gone by and the influence of their boodle is not so potent in deciding election contests as it was when the republican party was ruled by such men as Mark Hanna and Senator Tom Platt. The only remnant of the old regime still left, is represented by Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania.

But a few days ago, Mr. Bryan made the statement that Senator Walsh's voice is the only voice of progress heard in the east. He evidently referred to the senator's recent statement of principles which should find a place in the democratic platform.

This statement by Senator Walsh was published in The Sun and was not at all radical. If Bryan does not go beyond its limits, he will not be regarded as dangerous. All parties are now talking of humanizing or democratizing industry, and while these terms are very general, it is likely that some definite action in that direction will be advocated by both political parties.

STARVATION IN VIENNA

People returning from Vienna tell of the most horrifying conditions there, as a result of the lack of food and fuel. It is estimated that thousands are slowly starving to death and that their tortures are intensified by the cold, as the allowance of fuel is so meagre that even those who have food are in danger of freezing to death.

American agencies are providing some relief for the children; but it is far from meeting the general demands. The allies have a heavy responsibility to meet in saving the people of Vienna and other cities in Austria from starvation; but apparently, the measures thus far adopted are wholly inadequate to meet the most urgent necessities of the situation. It is estimated that in Vienna alone, there are 160,000 families without any fuel for cooking purposes, and as many more who have no food to cook.

Even people of wealth have written letters to friends in this country stating that they are waiting their death which, in their affliction, comes only after long and terrible suffering. There may be controversy over the League of Nations and other questions; but over the necessity of extending relief to some of the central European countries and to Armenia, all are agreed.

Although rather dilatory in the matter, congress has authorized relief measures which, if promptly applied, may save millions of lives in central Europe.

REPUBLICAN FAILURE

A republican congress has delayed and then bungled the railroad situation, and although the return of the common carriers to their owners is but a few weeks distant, the railroad return bill is still in conference between the two houses and at best will not meet eventually the problem of transformation from government to private operation.

A redistribution of the war burden was advocated by the administration, following the signing of the armistice, but there has been no readjustment to meet the changed conditions and the partial lifting of the unprecedented burdens of world war.

The republican congress has barely scratched the surface of the great question of international finance. It passed the Edge bill, authorizing the creation of corporations to foster the export trade of the country, but it is not seriously contended that this measure will meet the trade demands of the near future.

Practically nothing has been done to meet the pressing issues between capital and labor. With industrial unrest-making trouble in almost every section of a nation; just emerged from war, congress has indulged in political debates and offered no constructive program.

HAYS EXCORIATED

That was certainly a severe ex-cori-ation which Secretary Glass of the treasury department, gave Will H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee in refuting his slanderous charge that the name of every buyer of Liberty bonds was put on the democratic mailing list for the forthcoming campaign. Showing that these lists are not available for any purpose except the sale of government securities, Mr. Glass called upon Hays to furnish proof or else apologize. The latter made reply in a half evasive, half apologetic way; but Mr. Glass did not propose to let him wriggle out of his false charge in any such manner. He took up Hays' reply and exposed the falsity of his charges in the most scathing terms. In all probability, Mr. Hays will be more careful, in the future, in his references to the treasury department. It is the peculiar function of the chairman of the national republican committee to attack the administration, with or without cause. In some of his onslaughts, he has been badly worsted.

The postal clerks are seeking a readjustment of their salaries with provision for retirement and sick leave with pay, on the ground that although the cost of living has nearly doubled since the beginning of the war, they have received but a 25 per cent increase. All the post-office men, and especially the carriers, work hard and should receive fair compensation. Other classes of government employees less deserving are receiving much more liberal treatment than the postal clerks.

It is safer and wiser for people driving autos or motorcycles to avoid streets crowded with coasters. If the vehicle does not run over anybody, some of the coasters are liable to run into it and get seriously injured.

Mr. Hoover is still looming strong as a presidential possibility.

SEEN AND HEARD

Conan Doyle thinks there is also not in the other world. Tut, tut, man. You mean spirits.

The electric heater is a great invention when the steam heat fails you on a cold morning.

And now the only way to get more than one-half of one per cent, is to buy wood alcohol, and stir with the undertaker.

That New York man who bought his wife an $85,000 coat chose a more effective means than propaganda for the making of radicals.

When you hear a clerk say something on Monday morning and then hear a department head spring it at a council meeting on the following day, it kinder makes you sit up and take notice.

Made to Measure
Mrs. Newrich—Don't you think, William, now that we are getting into society, that we should have a coat-of-arms?

Newrich—Certainly, my dear, I'll see my tailor about it tomorrow.—Boston Transcript.

Independence
"John," said Mrs. Cluckpeck, "I want you to take your feet off that table."
"Mrs. Cluckpeck," he answered, "there is only one person who can talk that way to me."

"And who is that?" she demanded.
"You, my dear," replied John, putting his feet to rest on the floor.—Service Magazine.

Irreverent Soldier
John Hall of Hutchinson, Kan., one of the soldiers now at Pittsburg, Kan., on account of the strike situation, says while "over there" last year he was shown an old church.

"A great many people sleep here," said the guide, showing the inscriptions in the floor.

"Same way in America," replied Hall. "Why don't they get a more interesting preacher?"—Stars and Stripes.

Things to Remember
Fresh air is as necessary to health as pure and nourishing food.

People should not sleep in overcrowded rooms, nor with closed windows.

Homes and workshops must be clean and thoroughly ventilated. Dirt and impure air are the allies of tuberculosis.

Persons with colds or coughs of long standing or persons who are losing in weight or strength should consult a doctor or go to a dispensary or clinic. It is dangerous to wait.

The large majority of people probably have had tuberculosis in their systems, but they do not become sick with it because they take good care of their general health and strength.

Our Daily Bread

(Copyright, 1920, C.E.A.)
"Give us this day our daily bread."
"Man does not live by bread alone,"
But so his children may be fed,
"Who asks for bread receives a stone?"

Who asks for bread receives a stone
That he shall keep his sickle sharp
Until the long-stemmed grain is grown
And close as strings upon a harp.

And when the wheat is milled and blown
And gathered in its shifting mound,
Who asks for bread receives a stone,
For by the stone the grain is ground.

And when the grain is made to meal,
Think you how bread was first made known.

Where did its incense first appeal,
But from the ancient hearth of stone?

"Give us this day our daily bread,"
"Man does not live by bread alone,"
But so his children may be fed,

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Lowell has its quota of self-made men, as no one will deny. One meets them everywhere—in hotels, clubs and, of course, in the shops where the tonorial artist plies his trade. It was in a barber shop, not long ago, that I chatted with Thomas Lees, manager of the Lowell division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co., who can surely claim to be a member of the "self-made" contingent; for many people can remember when "Tom" was just a conductor in the days before electricity had replaced Old Dobbin on the local street railway. After we had given up speculating as to how much longer we must wait before friend barber would be at liberty to attend to our needs, the conversation drifted to the topic of jitneys, and Mr. Lees pointed out some of the reasons why the local road is so strongly opposed to this kind of competition. "Every dollar which the jitneys take from the road in business makes it just so much harder for the company to pay a reasonable dividend to its stockholders in return for money invested," he declared. "If the company is able to pay the stockholders and still retain a sur-

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Mrs. J. Christman Proved That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Remedy for this Trouble.

Binghamton, N. Y.—"I was in a very nervous condition for over a year, my mind was gloomy, could see no light on anything, could not work and could not have anyone to see me. Doctor's medicine did not help me and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended. I took it and am now well. I recommend it to all afflicted with nervous prostration."—Mrs. J. CHRISTMAN, 193 Oak Street, Binghamton, N. Y.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from nervous prostration, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and dizziness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

plus of funds, then it becomes possible to reduce fares. And a reduction of fares is what we are looking forward to. But if jitneys are allowed to continue taking the business away from the road, there will be no surplus, and fare reductions cannot be made.

The appointment of Representative Owen E. Brennan of this city on the legislative committee on banks and banking gives the popular legislator an exceptionally important position in state house circles as this committee is generally conceded to be one of the most vital of legislative machinery. To it are referred matters pertaining to banking regulations and the committee is even more important in Massachusetts than in other states because of the high calibre of this commonwealth's banking laws—a fact that has won the state nation-wide recognition—and this high calibre must be retained by the successive legislatures which enact the laws relative to banking year after year. Lowell bank men are particularly pleased with Representative Brennan's appointment as it insures them a man at the state house looking after their interest as well as those of the public at large.

It is expected that Lowell will be well represented at the exemplification of the fourth degree of the Knights of Columbus in Boston next month and Lowell men, as usual, will figure prominently in the deliberations of the provincial assembly.

Faithful Navigator Andrew Molloy of the local assembly, one of the most enthusiastic and earnest K. of C. workers in this section, is making preparations for Lowell's part in the affair and it is safe to say that before he retires from office he will have an exemplification of the fourth degree here in Lowell for all New England.

Marcelled Low Pompadour and Centre Marcelled Part With Low Pompadour, as Worn By Gloria Swanson

HOW I DRESS MY HAIR

Low Marcelled Pompadours
Are Favored by Actress
For Informal Occasions

BY GLORIA SWANSON

(Famous Players-Lasky Star)

This type of coiffure is a favorite of mine, particularly for informal around-the-house wear. Although the process sounds a bit complicated when described, it belies its description. Marcelled straight off the forehead, part a bang over the forehead which should be Marcelled, too. Now wave the sides and draw them back tightly over the temples, but allow the sides to pull out full over the ears.

Dress the back before turning the attention to the front. Draw the hair back above the bang in a single full sweep ending at the nape of the neck. Turn all ends under and fasten with a net.

This coiffure is most effective with a morning dress. It gives an effect of unstudied care which makes it doubly appropriate.

Satisfactory With Hats

Another coiffure, having much the same lines I have called the centre Marcelled part with low pompadour because it is a combination of these two simple types of hairdress. It can be effectively worn for any informal occasion and I find it particularly satisfactory for wear when I am forced to put on and take off hats.

Part your hair an inch in depth in the centre and draw it back in a low pompadour. Marcel the sides. Dress the front first, then the sides.

Net Almost Necessary

Curled the ends and dress the back, permitting the curled ends to cluster a little above the low pompadour.

As in the previous styles of hairdress, a net is of service in keeping the hair in place after it is dressed. Where a hat is worn and frequently removed and replaced, this accessory is almost a necessity.

JAPAN AND PEACE

FACT IN CHINA

(By ROONEY GILBERT)
(Leading Journalist in Orient)
A treaty, like a legal document, is not technically perfect if more than one meaning can be read into it. In nearly every agreement or understanding between Occidental and Oriental nations flaws have been found because of different interpretations.

This is particularly true regarding the Shantung provision of the Paris Peace treaty.

It is the part of Japanese policy abroad to insist that in the inheritance of Germany's "economic rights" in Shantung she receives something very trifling and altogether incommensurate with her services in the war. In the Orient, however, it is clearly understood that the term "economic rights" means everything that the Japanese could possibly want.

In the Occident an economic right means simply the right to do business subject to law, local jurisdiction and in accord with the best local interests. In China, however, there exists a convention known as extraterritoriality, which means that where an outsider is permitted to trade he trades subject to the laws and traditions of his own country, in his own interest or the interests of his nationals, and that the legality of his business or of his personal conduct is not judged by the Chinese among whom he lives but by his own authorities.

It has been proven a thousand times over that the hordes of Japanese residents in Manchuria, Fukien and Shantung have consistently abused their extraterritorial rights to gain a monopoly of trade, and for their own interests.

The rights which Japan acquires through the Paris provisions and through negotiations with a small group of pro-Japanese officials who at the time represent the government of China, include a monopolistic hold upon one railway, the Tsingtao-Tsinanfu line, 280 miles long, and contracts for the construction of two others. Japan has already used the former German line for the establishment of Japanese colonies along its whole length; for the movements of Japanese soldiers; for the illegal export of copper cash; for the establishment of a freight monopoly through the institution of a privileged transport company granting discriminatory rates, and through the placing of Japanese police and officials who break down Chinese authority and now tax Chinese trade crossing the railway zone.

These same Paris terms give Japan

Poor circulation, inward troubles relieved by RED PILLS for Pale and Weak Women

MRS. ERNEST CHARETTE

RED PILLS were my mother's favorite remedy, and she did not cease recommending them to me. I gave them a trial and they relieved me of general weakness, poor circulation, inward trouble and other minor ailments. I had started to work when very young, and although I was favored with a strong constitution, the strain was too much and I was unable to keep up my work. Now that I know how easy it is for me to keep strong and well by the use of RED PILLS, I am firmly resolved that I will continue taking them regularly, and not let myself become a victim of that terrible malady, which is Anemia.

a port at Tsingtao with exclusive control over wharves, docks and public service properties which were formerly state property. The customs, nominally Chinese, is entirely in Japanese hands, and in some manner the port has imported and distributed enough opium in the last four years, according to the official estimates of observers of several nationalities, to have paid five times over for the cost of the Japanese military expedition which originally took Tsingtao and for all public works undertaken there during Japanese occupation.

The port of Tsingtao, at which Japan is to have a settlement embracing all existing public utilities gives her a base from which to extend her trade into the interior of Shantung. The railways into the interior, existing and projected, give her a channel through which to carry her influence into the heart of China by any method she may approve, and the monopoly on development inherited through the terms of the German treaty and confirmed by agreement with China in 1915, puts the future prosperity and well being of the whole of Shantung province at the mercy of Japanese expansionists.

The development of these holdings under extraterritorial rights might not seriously impair Chinese sovereignty or Chinese authority, if the direction of such development were in the hands of a benign people devoted to China's interests and considerate of her prestige. If the direction of development is not thoroughly benign, however, it is easy to see that China has nothing to say about it.

And Japan's record in China at large and in Shantung particularly gives the Chinese no ground for believing that Shantung is anything but a lost province, a Japanese territory in all but name.

Three out of every four Germans more than 20 years of age are women still in good health.

"NAP-A-MINIT"

Used by Dr. Gagnon in His Superior PORCELAIN DENTISTRY

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of TWO KINDS OF DENTISTRY. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old harsh method employed to this day by many dentists. Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, hindering him in his work, and making his own pain necessarily greater. Every nerve in his body is on edge—every muscle tense—he is indeed the personification of fear and pain. THIS IS DENTISTRY AS I DO NOT DO IT.

This is what "Nap-a-Minit" has done for all my PATIENTS. "Nap-a-Minit" is a positive pain destroyer and absolutely eliminates all pain in dentistry. With its use, one may have teeth and roots extracted, nerves removed, cavities prepared and filled, crowns and bridge-work inserted and every conceivable kind of dental operation performed without the slightest fear or dread because IT WILL NOT HURT.

Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see restfulness and relaxation, a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor, unhindered, do his very best work. This is an example of DENTISTRY AS I DO PRACTICE IT.

Now that you have seen the two pictures and know the story that they tell, it is up to you to CHOOSE if you have dental work to be done. Will you have pain and harsh treatment or will you have "Nap-a-Minit" and no pain at my office? There is little doubt about your answer and when you come here you will find the greatest service and value-giving dental offices in New England.

BELIEVE 400 LOST WITH SHIP

Only 57 Survivors of Lost
Steamer Afrique Known
To Have Landed

Hope For Others Faded During Night, as Hours Passed
Without Word

LA ROCHELLE, France, Jan. 14.—More than 400 persons are believed to have lost their lives in the wreck of the steamer Afrique
on Roche Bonne shoal, Bay of Biscay. Only 57 survivors are known to have been landed. Hope for the rest of the passengers and crew faded during the past night, as hour after hour passed without word.

Sailors and French colonial soldiers are the only persons from the ship known to have reached land safely.

"It was impossible to approach the Afrique," said Captain Jounu of the steamer Ceylan, which was summoned to the scene of the wreck by wireless on Saturday, and which attempted to rescue those on board the doomed vessel. "I remained in wireless communication with the ship, however, and received the following message: 'I am drifting and I fear the ship will go ashore.' Later came another message reading: 'I am steering for a light.'"

"Then came a final message: 'We are sinking.' That is all I know about the loss of the Afrique."
Some of the rescued sailors declared that when, with great difficulty, the boats were swung out, passengers were afraid to jump into them, seeing they were already half full of water.

"THE GIRL AND THE PENNANT"

The public sale of tickets for the two presentations of "The Girl and the Pennant," to be given at the Lowell
Opera House next Monday by high school students, began at the school
this noon at 12 o'clock. Practically all seats are already sold for the evening performance, with the exception of admission checks for the second balcony,
but there are a quantity of orchestra
and first balcony seats available for the matinee. Public sale will continue at the school through Saturday and until Monday noon, after which the sale will be carried on from the theatre box office.

Miss Joyce feels that the students will score an unqualified success this year. The play, which has a splendid baseball plot, first suggested by Christy Mathewson, appeals to the boys and girls taking part and they have well entered into the spirit of the production.

F. O. Blunt has been busy with the school orchestra which will play incidental music for the play.

SPOTTED MULE AND LAUGHING ALLIGATOR

BY O. B. JOYFUL
Three years ago there was delivered to a firm of cattle dealers at the Kansas City stockyards a puny maverick mule. A member of the firm called a stableman and said:
"Take that thing out and scrub it with hot water and soap. Anyone who would daub up a mule with shoe polish like that ought to have a pinch hit in his mouth the remainder of his days."

The mule was given a scrubbing.
The stableman brought him back and said:
"Boss, them spots go clear on down through the hide into the interior re-

Above is a close-up of the front tail
of Zeb.

Washin' don't do no good. They're like the leopard's spots—they're there to stay as long as the mule does."

The spots and the mule remained at the stockyards and in some way the mule became possessed of the name of Zeb.
Zeb began winning renown as a saddle animal. He advertised his owner's business, for every visitor asked about
him because of his spots.
Zeb is the only spotted mule in captivity or out. Zeb is the living exception to the rule that mules must be black, white or brown.

About Alligators

And Abe White of Fayette, Ia., has an alligator that'll smile!
But Abe's alligator won't smile unless he's (the alligator, not Abe) is licked under the chin.

Which is probably the only way anybody can make any alligator grin. Try it on the next 'gator you meet.
While on the 'gator subject it may be as well to call your attention to the neat and nifty way alligators have solved the high cost of living problem.
Mister Alligator quits eating in September, according to Abe White, and doesn't seem to feel the need of grub
until June.

During the months alligators eat,
food prices are lowest. When the old
food profiteer boosts costs of things,
Mr. Alligator quits feeding.
Quite a simple method of knocking
the high out of the cost of living, isn't it?

Dandruff Soon ruins the Hair

Girls! If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will ruin your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely.
To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arsenic, apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten
the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most of it will be gone and dandruff will be gone, and there will be four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.
You will find, too, that all itching
and itching of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arsenic at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need. Use it every day. How much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Adv.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. For 17 years he used these tablets (a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil) in his private practice with great success.

They do all the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. No pains, no griping, no injury to the gums or danger from acid foods—yet they stimulate the liver and bowels.
Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
when you feel "lousy" and "heavy."
Note how they clear clouded brain and perk up the spirits. 10c and 25c a box.

Declare Wine Part of Daily Meals

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.—Seamen of a large number of foreign vessels have filed protests at the local customs house against the sealing of liquors when they come in in ship's stores or in the medicine chests, declaring that wine is a part of their daily meals and that sealing it works a hardship. It is set out in the complaints that a foreign vessel is a part of the country under whose flag it sails, and the claim is made that as long as the amount of liquor is not excessive and is not landed,
the federal authorities lack jurisdiction.
Petitions have been sent to the foreign ambassadors at Washington to secure a reversal of the order.

STRAW VOTES ON PEACE TREATY IN COLLEGES

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Mixed results were shown in the balloting in New England colleges yesterday on the ratification of the peace treaty and the League of Nations. In most of the colleges four propositions were voted upon:

- 1.—Favoring ratification without amendments or reservations.
- 2.—Opposing ratification in any form.
- 3.—Favoring ratification with the Senate majority reservations.
- 4.—Favoring any compromise which would make possible immediate ratification.

Two additional propositions were on the ballot at some of the colleges, as follows:

- 5.—Favoring a separate peace with Germany, leaving the question of a League of Nations to be settled afterwards.
- 6.—Favoring a compromise on reservations that would avoid danger of defeating ratification while still making clear that Congress has sole power to declare war, domestic questions and the Monroe doctrine are outside the jurisdiction of the league, plural votes are disqualified in any dispute in which this country is disqualified from voting and this country is to be sole judge whether its obligations have been met if it withdraws from the league.

At Harvard, both students and faculty polled the highest vote for No. 4 with No. 1 running second. Smith and Mount Holyoke, both women's colleges, also cast the heaviest vote for No. 4 with No. 1 second.

In the four Maine colleges, No. 4 led, Colby, Maine and Bowdoin gave second place to No. 3 and Bates to No. 1.

Boston college cast a majority for No. 3 with No. 2 second. At Brown No. 6 led with No. 5 second. Amherst favored No. 1 with No. 4 second. Massachusetts Agricultural College polled the heaviest vote for No. 5 with No. 1 second.

At the last three colleges all six questions were on the ballot.

WOMEN HOLD AN ALL DAY MEETING

The women's association of the Episcopal Union church held an all-day gathering yesterday, with a sewing meeting in the forenoon and an address by Miss Harriet C. Norton of Alhambra, Turkey, as the feature of the afternoon program.

Fifty or more women met at the parish house at 10 o'clock and for two hours sewed on garments for the Faith Home. Luncheon was served at 12.30 under the direction of Mrs. John Stevens, Mrs. Frank Knowles, Mrs. Nathan Pulsifer and Mrs. Clarence Hoyt. Men of the parish were present in large numbers. Miss Norton's address was most interesting and embraced a recital of her service in charge of orphanage work in Turkey for Armenian children during war years.

BRITISH-CANADIAN WAR VETERANS

The Lowell British-Canadian war veterans held their regular meeting at the Community club last night and elected the following officers to serve during the current year: President, J. H. Hoban; vice president, Frank Carman; financial secretary, John Hurst; treasurer, Lewis Balfe; recording secretary, J. S. Davies; John Fairburn, J. H. Hoban and John Percival were named an auditing committee.

Plans were discussed for a ladies' night to be held on February 3 and the following committee were chosen to take over the management of the affair: George Wesley, John Fairburn, John Cramm and Benjamin Tattersall.

METAL FILING CASES

At the request of the state commissioner of records there have been installed recently in the office of the city clerk a number of metal filing cases for the alphabetical recording of deaths in this city from 1842 up to 1880. The cases are inflammable and as time goes on it is probable that more of them will be installed to take care not only of deaths which have occurred since 1880 but also of marriages and births.

national law that will battle the most expert law-breaker.

The machinery will consist of two branches; one will operate in the various states of the country and the other will have districts as units. There will be a total of ten of these districts in the United States.

In each state there will be a federal prohibition director and under him there will be a number of inspectors. This state organization will be in charge of the issuance of all permits for the sale and use of non-beverage alcohol. It will keep tabs on the records of physicians, druggists, sanitarians, etc., to see that the provisions of the law are complied with.

The men who are in the district branches of the prohibition enforcement machinery will be experienced in this kind of work and will be the men who will keep a watch on bootleggers, illicit manufacturers, etc. They will form a sort of a "flying squadron" that can be transferred from one section of a district to another as their services may be needed.

In addition, of course, the Lowell police department will not relax its duties in this direction and will work in co-operation with the federal authorities in seeing that the regulations of the constitutional amendment are lived up to.

From the filmiest to the most mannish sport blouse

Every one flaunts gay color

PURPLE, turquoise, blue, rose, radiant coral—there's not a smart magazine that doesn't flash color from every page. Sport blouses, demure blouses, shimmery, sheer, dressed-up ones and those for plain work-a-day, all are set on being sprightly.

The shops can't make or get fast enough, the joyous colors you've been reading about and want. It's sometimes months and months after you first hear of a new shade before you see it in the shops.

But now there's a wonderful new way to get just the smart turquoise you want for that festive little linen, the delicate yellow that your sad white crêpe de Chine's been sighing for.

You can wash them any blithe, new color you want.

This new product just washes color in

Really and truly just wash it—with Twink. Twink comes in the merriest, gayest little flakes. They whip into a brilliant lather, you pop your blouse into the shining suds, swish it about for a few minutes and all in a twinkling it gets its lovely new hue. And the precious blue georgette the sun had faded, the yellow voile that was too pale, all are Twinked back to their first freshness.

Really smart colors and they turn out right

Twink comes in the season's most fashionable shades, selected with the help of the country's authorities on color, and they turn out right every time, with never a streaky or dingy look. And so fast are these colors that you can wash your blouse several times in Lux before it comes back for its next Twinking.

In all these smart colors

Today get two or three boxes of Twink in the colors you've been reading about and wanting. Twink won't harm anything pure water alone will not harm. The department stores, your druggist, the five and ten cent stores all have Twink. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass. (Makers of Lux).

You use some of the Twink colors like Lux. Others require boiling water and salt. Read directions both outside and inside the package before using.

Twink is made by the makers of Lux. It is as wonderful for giving colors as Lux is for preserving them.

ment have on Lowell as far as the license commission is concerned," the writer asked John J. Flaherty, clerk of the local license commission, the body which was the centre of interest here when wartime prohibition went into effect last July.

"It will have very little effect on us," replied Mr. Flaherty. "The law provides that beverages which contain less than one-half of one percent alcohol are not intoxicating and may be sold at will. That is what the local saloons are now entitled to sell and there will be no change as far as this phase of the situation is concerned when the federal amendment goes into effect."

"How many saloons are now doing business in Lowell?" he was asked. "I don't know, we haven't kept a record of them."

Some Positive Changes

So much for what isn't going to happen. Now for some of the positive results that will affect Lowell when the amendment becomes law next Friday.

In the first place, if you are looking forward to having a good time when the rest of the city is suffering from thirst, please remember these little points in the regulations of the Volstead act which goes into effect simultaneously with the 15th amendment. All liquor for beverage purposes must be within the private residence of the possessor before January 17 and must have been owned by him prior to the first of last July. That means that if you were in the liquor business here in Lowell and had a goodly supply on hand last July which, of course, you were not supposed to sell, and are anticipating enjoying this for your own use after next Friday, just be sure that it's down in the cellar of your own home before Saturday Jan. 17. If you leave it in your home, place of business or in storage somewhere else, it won't be of any more use to you than the waters of the Concord river. For the law says it must be in your own residence.

Likewise, if you are a friend of somebody who has a "big stock" of hard and who has promised to share it with you, don't let it go with the word, but see to it that whatever "share" is coming to you is on your own premises before Jan. 17. Other-

What Your Kidneys Should Do For You

The kidneys are really filters, finely organized for their work of cleaning and purifying the blood, selecting and throwing out waste products which would act as poisons if permitted to remain in the system. When your kidneys are out of order, the impurities are not removed and remain to poison the system, causing backache, swollen or stiff joints, rheumatic pains, puffiness under the eyes, floating specks, biliousness, weakness and pale, waxy, dry skin.

WAS MISERABLE AND ALL TIRED OUT
"I suffered with kidney trouble and have taken many kinds of medicine without getting relief. I used to have severe pains across my back and felt miserable and all tired out, but after taking Foley's Kidney Pills I am well. In fact I have not been bothered with kidney trouble since taking the pills."—Mrs. C. J. Ellis, 505 5th Ave., Sioux Falls, S. D.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

are made from the purest and finest medicines, accepted as the most helpful for kidney trouble and bladder ailments. They cost far more to make than the average kidney pills, for the high standard of their making is never departed from, no matter how the cost of ingredients advances.

WOMEN MAKE PROGRESS IN MEDICINE

A succinct summary of the progress of the woman physician was made at a recent banquet of the Women's State Medical Society, New York. It was established that one-third of the 6000 women physicians in the United States registered for war relief work.

Foreign Requests
Military commissions have been conferred by the United States government upon a number of women physicians working in France, where they have been decorated by English, French, Greek and Serbian governments. Requests that hospitals be staffed exclusively by American women physicians, for war relief work, have been made by both Serbian and French governments, and have been granted.

Hospitals and Schools

At the present time, the summary stated, women are admitted on the same terms as men, in more than 10 co-educational medical colleges in the United States, including Columbia, Yale and Harvard. Taking New York as an example, there are women on the staffs of at least five large hospitals in the city; many women are on the New York board of health, and on the faculty of many co-educational schools, such as the New York Post Graduate, Cornell, Columbia and Harvard.

Already Atlantians have been warned that automatic telephone will be with them in just three years, and they thus have a chance to prepare in time to get their own numbers through the new exchange. The first lesson begins: "Suppose you want 120. First stick your finger through the hole over 1."

NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION

The third annual meeting of the stockholders of the Merrimack Valley National Farm Loan Association was held yesterday in the quarters of the organization in the Hildreth building with a large number in attendance. Reports from the various officers were heard, but the most interesting was that of E. Gaston Campbell, secretary-treasurer, which showed that during the past year the organization has more than doubled its amounts of loans. In 1919 the loans amounted to $173,909. There are 130 organizations of this kind in New England. New York and New Jersey, and the Merrimack Valley association stands 12th as far as amounts of loans are concerned, and it is expected that during the present year the association will reach the top of the ladder.

A feature of this morning's meeting was the election of the board of directors, which resulted as follows: Thomas Howard, Chelmsford; Moses L. Dalgle, Braintree; David J. Blair, Methuen; James B. Carr, Chelmsford, and E. Gaston Campbell, Lowell. The directors later elected officers as follows: Thomas Howard, president; Moses L. Dalgle, vice president; E. Gaston Campbell, secretary-treasurer. It was announced that the annual meeting of the Federal Land bank, of which the Merrimack Valley association acts as a clearing house, will be held at Springfield in the latter part of this month and Mr. Campbell was instructed to attend the meeting as the representative of the Merrimack Valley National Farm Loan association.

Many People Suffer From Physical Defects

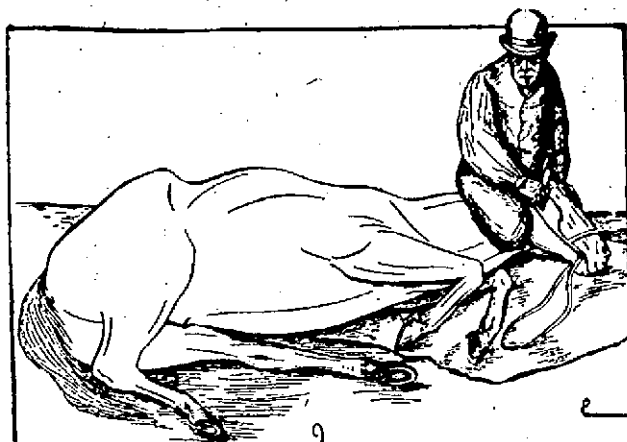

The medical examination for military service showed that about one-third of the men suffered from physical defects which made them unfit for active military duty. A large proportion of the defects discovered could have been prevented if attended to in early life; others could still be cured or relieved by proper medical attention.

The time for patriotic service has not passed. The health of the youth of the nation, indeed, of all citizens, is the greatest asset of the nation.

We must not lose the lessons of the war; we have paid too high a price for them.

It is your duty to your family, to yourself, and to your country to keep well, to improve your health to the highest degree, to assist in making the nation strong and fit for the great tasks ahead, and for the happier and larger life that awaits the people of this war-torn world.

WHEN A HORSE FALLS

When a horse falls on a slippery pavement, first hold his head to prevent struggling, next remove the harness and then provide a safe footing before attempting to rise. The United States department of agriculture believes that a clear knowledge by the public of methods for helping a fallen horse to rise will help to prevent injuries that sometimes follow unskilled handling of such cases.

Slipping generally is the result of shoes worn smooth by hard pavements, a treacherous footing, or a combination of these conditions.

A strong, healthy horse often can recover his balance by spreading and bracing his legs, but if he finally falls it is usually on his knees or broadside.

When the driver sees his horse falling, he should put on the brake immediately, especially if the vehicle is loaded and is on a hill, and then go to the animal's assistance. Heavy vehicles without a brake should have the wheels blocked.

Enumbered by harness, a fallen horse is likely to injure himself if he tries to rise. The first precaution, therefore, is to hold his head, as illustrated, until the harness has been removed and then spread sand, straw, a blanket or burlap on the pavement so the horse will have a firm footing when he attempts to rise.

If the horse lies on his side, roll him on to his chest with the hind legs under his body and the front legs in the position shown.

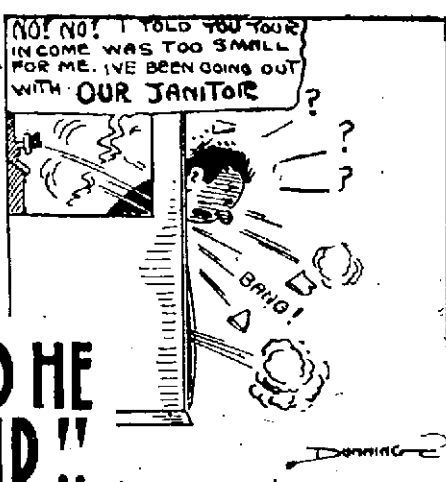

In the meantime the driver should have been speaking to the horse in a reassuring tone to remove fright and to give the animal confidence. The horse is now ready to rise—which he will do without difficulty or injury provided the directions accompanied by good judgment have been followed.

A sick woman at Huntington, W. Va., needed some lemons Sunday, but on account of Mayor Campbell's Sunday-closing edict no fruit store was open. Dr. I. C. Hicks, therefore, wrote a prescription for six lemons, and the prescription was filled at a drug store.

MATRIMONIAL

A pretty wedding took place this morning when Mr. Arthur Bedard and Miss Eva B. Augustin Gratton, O.M.I. During the service appropriate hymns were sung by the choir under the direction of Mr. L. N. Gullabault, who also presided at the organ and at the offertory, Mrs. Wilfrid Payette of Haverhill, a sister of the bride, rendered Panofka's "O Salutaris." National Agreement With R.R. Employees

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Director General Hines has signed a national agreement covering rules and working conditions with the Brotherhood of railway and steamship clerks, freight handlers and express and station employees. The agreement, it was announced today, is retroactive to January 1, and will continue in force during the period of federal control.

The agreement provides for time and a half for overtime after eight hours, applying to all employees except certain workers whose employment is light or intermittent, and for one day's rest each week except where operation of the individual railroads would be affected.

Brotherhood officials requested a national agreement last summer, and the subject has been under consideration since that time first by the regional directors, and later by the board of railway wages and working conditions.

Go To Bring Troops Home From Siberia

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The army transport Edellyn, the first of a fleet of vessels that will take from Siberia the troops of Czechoslovakia, and the United States regulars commanded by Major General William S. Graves, will leave here today with her announced destination, Vladivostok. The steamer will go by way of the Panama canal, and will call at Honolulu for coal and supplies.

Other ships of the fleet for Russia, it is understood, will be the President Grant and the America.

The American soldiers in Russia number approximately 10,000 men. The troop carrying capacity of the three transports considerably exceeds that number.

Previous to the return of the American soldiers, it is understood here that the American transports will assist in the removal from Russia of the Czechoslovak troops and the Stevens Siberian Railway commission.

and police departments and janitors of the school department are now entitled to pensions from the city and former employees of the water department, street department and public buildings department are drawing pensions under an act accepted by the city some time ago which provides for the pensioning of all employees who are veterans of the Civil war.

The school department janitors who are not war veterans have been under pension less than a year because the council did not accept the act providing for their pensions until last year.

The legislature passes an act providing for the pensioning of the janitors in the local buildings department and the municipal council accepts it, there will be about a dozen men entitled to the pension after they have reached the age of 60 and have given 25 years' service to the city.

BELLEVUE CLUB BOYS GREAT ENTERTAINERS

A splendid buffet luncheon, boxing exhibitions by local unit artists, and entertainment numbers and "specialties" of all kinds featured the first of a series of monthly smokers held by the Bellevue club at their headquarters on Middlesex street last evening. A large crowd of members and friends of the organization, including a delegation from the Saginaw club who were the "guests of honor," attended the event and unanimously pronounced it a complete success.

The first number on the evening's program consisted of a sparring match in which appeared "Kid" Paves and "Young" Frank Avila. The second contest introduced "Knockout" Purcell of the Bellevue club and "One Round" Trudell, representing the Saginaw delegation. In the last bout "Kid" Marshall and "Casey" Ryan were the contestants. No decisions were given.

Next came the entertainers, of whom there were many. "Scotty" Davidson opened with a Highland fling, and followed this with other expositions of the art of Terpsichore.

William Hartnett came to the fore with some "Jewish" dances, and was followed by "Red" Ward, who described his offering as "classic dancing." It sure was classic, a that. A "butterfly dance" by Patrick Kate also met with unstinted applause.

An exhibition of eccentric juggling by William Scotland came next. They do that William juggled 10 plates of ice cream—and when the exhibition was over no one could tell just where the cream had gone.

A pie-eating contest between H. Purcell and Walter Ray was decided in favor of Ray.

A "breakdown" by Charles Carroll made a big hit with the audience. Someone was unkind enough to remark that Carroll almost went through the floor—but probably they were just jealous.

Several song numbers were interspersed throughout the program, including selections by "Babe" Lawson, Frank Levasser and "Young" Chandler.

Finale of the musical program consisted of piano selections by Leo Sylvester.

BERLIN, Tuesday, Jan. 13, 8
p. m. (By Associated Press.)—

The government tonight proclaimed martial law in all sections of Germany, following the mob demonstration this afternoon in which at least 10 persons were killed and many others were wounded by machine gun fire from guards in front of the Reichstag building.

Gustav Noske, the minister of defense, has been appointed commander in chief for the Greater Berlin district and Brandenburg province. Street parades, meetings and demonstrations of all kinds have been prohibited.

Tonight Noske's troops threw a rifle and barbed wire cordon throughout the downtown streets. The Reichstag square was given a reinforced patrol. The Wilhelmstrasse was barred to all traffic and the government building was virtually inaccessible except to those employed there.

The Unter den Linden entrance to the Hotel Adlon was closed and barred. The members of the assembly were not molested as they left the Reichstag building after adjournment.

DESCHANEL CANDIDATE FOR FRENCH PRESIDENT

PARIS, Jan. 14.—Paul Deschanel was suddenly thrust forward as a candidate for the presidency of the republic in the chamber of deputies last night, seemingly by spontaneous impulse on the part of members of the radical socialist groups. The candidacy of M. Deschanel promises to live up the congress of Versailles which will meet Saturday to elect a president, and the expected walkover for Premier Clemenceau, which was regarded by everyone as a foregone conclusion, may not materialize.

Immediately after M. Deschanel was re-elected president of the chamber by 455 ballots cast, some 150 to 200 deputies, led by former Premier Briand, Edouard Herriot, Camille Lenoir and Andre Lefevre, shouted: "Now to Versailles!" Those and others crowded around M. Deschanel, urging him to stand as a candidate. After a conference last night with his friends, M. Deschanel said he would accept the candidacy if designated by the caucus of republicans and socialist groups of both houses, which is called for Thursday. The left groups of the chamber will meet in plenary session tomorrow and will formally choose M. Deschanel as their candidate and inform him of their choice the same evening.

M. Deschanel's acceptance is expected to force Premier Clemenceau to announce whether or not he is a candidate, owing to the precedent created by M. Clemenceau in 1912 when he called upon M. Poincare and informed him that Jules Pains had been chosen as candidate by the republicans. "Inasmuch as you are also a candidate," M. Clemenceau told M. Poincare, "I say tell us of whom you are the candidate." The feeling is expressed among the supporters of M. Deschanel that Premier Clemenceau cannot await a similar call from the delegates of the radicals and socialists tomorrow.

The candidacy of M. Deschanel has brought out other aspirants for the presidency in Leon Bourgeois and Rene Viviani, both former premiers, and Jules Pains, the present minister of the interior.

Harvard Brewery Pays Most Unique Stock Dividend in City's History

Several months ago, when John Barclay lost his grip, stockholders in breweries were not envied because of the latter's forced suspension, but today their friends are legion and the green-eyed monster of jealousy runs and stalks abroad—and all this with absolute prohibition only two days away.

The Harvard Brewery of this city has warned the cockles of its stockholders' hearts by declaring a pro rata dividend payable in hard liquor that the brewery, it is stated, purchased some time ago for the protection of its retail customers, presumably to be able to supply their customers with hard liquors in the event of the war prohibition ban being lifted at a moment's notice. The ban, however, was not lifted, hence the unique dividend. It is stipulated in the notice received by the stockholders that they must take the goods away themselves; that the liquor must not be sold nor negotiated and a time limit is set for the removal of the "treasures."

It undoubtedly is the most novel stock dividend ever declared in Lowell, and it is not watered stock either which will be dispensed, but high proof liquors, and one naturally wonders what disposition the non-drinking stockholders will make of their liquid dividend.

Any list of stockholders, which might have been available in times past, is now absolutely unobtainable, for obvious reasons.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Admiral Sims has written another letter to Secretary of the Navy Daniels, headed "Some thoughts about lessons of the world war," the secretary said today, adding that he had not read all of it, but indicating that it dealt with the general question of naval morale efficiency and was "controversial" in tone.

Mr. Daniels said that if it was found on examination that the letter contained nothing which should not be made public, he would give it out together with his reply. Admiral Sims commended American naval forces overseas during the war and is now head of the naval war college at Newport.

COUNCIL BALKS AT STATE AUDIT

Votes To Have Commissioner of Finance Designate Man To Conduct Audit

The request of Commissioner John P. Salmon of the water department that he be allowed to have an audit of the accounts of that department made by an official from the office of the state director of accounts was not granted by the municipal council this morning and instead the members voted to instruct the commissioner of finance to designate an auditor to conduct the regular annual audit of all the city's accounts, as required by law, and appropriated $1200 for that purpose. Commissioner Salmon did not vote on the matter.

The commissioner was anxious to have the state conduct the audit so that there would be no criticism of it but after receiving an opinion from the city solicitor in which he said that the commissioner of finance, and not the municipal council, was empowered to name the auditor, the council voted to have Commissioner Donnelly designate the man who shall audit not only the books of the water department but of all the municipal departments.

Mayor Thompson pointed out that if Commissioner Salmon were not satisfied with the auditor chosen by Commissioner Donnelly, he might hire a man to do the work and pay for it out of his own department funds.

Commissioner Murphy said he hoped that the city would not be obliged to go to the expense of hiring two auditors and trusted that "the commissioner of finance would select a man suitable to Mr. Salmon." Whereupon Commissioner Donnelly immediately replied that he had had no regret because of any auditor he had previously hired and had heard no criticism of the work done.

The council also voted to approve the petition which jammers in the public buildings department are to submit to the legislature providing for their being pensioned at one-half pay after reaching the age of 60 and being in the service for 25 years. If the legislature passes the act, it will not become operative here until accepted by the council, but this morning's approval of the bill was necessary in order

WILL DRY DAYS BE SAD DAYS?

How Will the Advent of National Prohibition Affect City of Spindles?

"Fullness" Prohibited Except by the Man in the Moon—Lucky Guy!

When the sun begins creeping over Fort Hill park next Friday morning to start Lowell on another day of her career, it will look down upon a Lowell that has taken an arid oath destined to bind her until the end of her days to a high and dry seat on that popular 1920 model—the water wagon.

It won't be a red-faced sun that will smile on the Spindle City Friday morning for the good and sufficient reason that extremely red faces will be out of style beginning that day. The vogue of the flush complexion will be a thing of history, anyone who attempts it will be accused of a faux pas, for the grand and glorious era of juiceless desuetude will be upon us. On Friday, Jan. 16, the 15th amendment of the constitution, providing for the nation-wide prohibition, will go into effect.

How will the advent of national prohibition affect Lowell? It won't have any startling immediate effect because of the fact that the city has been virtually under prohibitory law since last July. War time prohibition has prepared Lowell as well as the rest of the country for the drought about to descend upon it. As far as can be learned, the only essential difference between the two forms of abstinence is the amount of stringency surrounding their enforcement of the

Private William F. Gannon, U.S.A., a Lowell boy, has come home to roost after a quarter of a century of service in the army, and this morning reported to Sgt. A. C. MacLeod of the local army recruiting station in the Mansur block for recruiting duty.

"It sure does seem good to get back to Lowell," said Gannon, who, although he has reached the age where most men would be willing to lead less strenuous lives than those required of men active in the service of the regular army, looks just as fit as the most youthful member of Uncle Sam's fighting men. "Tell the folks I've been at the game a long, long time and that I'm still going strong," he beamed as he started telling a little something about his experiences in the service. Gannon has re-enlisted innumerable times, but he expects to retire one year from the fifth of next March, when his present enlistment will expire.

Gannon got his early education in Lowell and has a number of relatives here. In the late nineties he succumbed to the influenza epidemic.

Co. Will Purchase the Bigelow Carpet Plant in Market Street

Sale Would Represent One of the Largest Real Estate Transactions in the City's History—Opening Wedge For Resumption of Business in One of Lowell's Biggest Plants

It is rumored that the huge plant of the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Co., covering a large area, with a frontage of several hundred yards on Market street and extending to the Merrimack canal at Dutton street, is in the process of transfer into the ownership of the American Woolen Co., and that its sale will entail a money consideration of upwards of $1,500,000. The property has an assessed valuation of $2,012,700.

If the sale goes through, it will constitute one of the largest real estate transactions in the city's history and will drive in the opening wedge for the resumption of industry in a plant which has long been considered a "white elephant" and an eye-sore to Lowell men who have the city's best interests at heart.

If the American Woolen Co. buys the property it will give that corporation control of five mills in and near Lowell, namely: the Ramshead at Middlesex Village, the Bay State Woolen in Lawrence street, the Beaver Brook mills at Collinsville, the Dracut Waste mill and the present Bigelow-Hartford plant.

Since the Bigelow-Hartford Co. vacated the buildings and removed its carpet manufacturing business to Thompsonville, Conn., and Clinton, some five years ago, the plant has never been utilized in its entirety.

During the war the United States Cartridge company placed considerable of its overflow munitions manufacture there and leased much of its floor space but that industry died down with the coming of the armistice. Practically all of its earthenware containers for cartridges were made there and at present the R. A. Wood Co. is continuing the manufacture of candy boxes and the like.

The North Middlesex chapter of the Red Cross also occupied one of the buildings as work and storage rooms and centralized all its war activities there for many months. It was then a perfect hive of industry, but when the natural business depression came with the end of the war, Red Cross work also was curtailed and the floor space was given up. For a month or so during the latter part of 1919 an army store was operated there on one floor but that, too, soon completed its work. For fully two years prior to the war, however, and since November, 1918, the

SUSPEND CAR SERVICE COLLEGE STUDENTS FOR IN SALEM TONIGHT TREATY RATIFICATION

SALEM, Jan. 14.—Street car service will be virtually discontinued here after tonight by the trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. because of motor bus competition.

Five lines, two running to Lynn, one to Boston and the two local lines to South Salem and Salem Willows, will be suspended, according to Fred A. Cummings, director of public relations for the trustees. The through service to Peabody, Beverly, Marblehead and Danvers will be restricted.

Service in the Salem district of the railway's field of operations was stopped by the trustees on Dec. 18, but was resumed after 21 hours, when the city officials had eliminated the jitney bus competition. A petition circulated by the jitney operators resulted in the order for a special election on Jan. 27 to decide whether the action of the city council in revoking the jitney license should be upheld. In the meantime many of the motor busses have continued to operate as formerly and the railway trustees have decided again to shut off the car service on the ground that the jitney competition makes it unprofitable.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Richard C. MacLaurin, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was said at his home today to be "a very sick man." Pneumonia has developed from the illness which prevented his attendance Saturday night at the dinner in celebration of the completion of technology's $1,000,000 endowment fund.

The wording of the proposition, which was generally favored, follows: "I favor a compromise between the Lodge and the democratic reservations in order to facilitate ratification of the treaty."

The proposition favoring ratification of the league and treaty without reservations got 373 votes; that opposing ratification in any form, 223, and that favoring ratification, but only with the Lodge reservations, 734.

In New England there was a decided preference for the compromise proposition, which was shared generally by the eastern colleges. In the middle west, the early returns showed a preference for the same proposition, while the votes were quite evenly divided between ratification without reservations and ratification with the Lodge reservations for second place.

In the south, early reports from 12 universities and colleges showed a large plurality for ratification without amendments. Those favoring the compromise plan came next.

The intercollegiate treaty referendum committee received telegraphic returns from all the colleges, and complete results were expected to be announced before midnight.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By Theatres' Own Press Agents)
B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
One of the brightest shows of the year at the B. F. Keith theatre, this week, there appear Johnnie Ford and his Five Original Melody Makers in an act replete with dancing and music.
Ford is the dancer, and he does more of it than any two other men that can be recalled. The mads sing and play the piano, of which there are five. The act is appropriately costumed and is decidedly entertaining.
Ash and Hyams sing and talk in very modern fashion, and William Grew and Gwendoline Pates offer a splendid comedy of their own concoction. The Follies Girls are real gipsy-dancers who will inject a lot of life, and the Clockwork Water Jugs are unusual. The rest of the bill includes Stanley & Dale, minstrels; the Brower trio, in melodrama; Mmo. Ayer, singer, and Charlie Chaplin's latest picture,
"A Day's Pleasure."

OPERA HOUSE
The work of Walter Buckley, in his characterization of the member of the English nobility in search of an American heiress, in the farce comedy,
"Johnny Get Your Gun," being produced this week by the Lowell Players at the Opera House, is one of the bright spots in the presentation.
Mr. Buckley carries a major portion of the humor-making scenes of the play and he does it in a manner that is winning, amusing and merited recognition from the audiences. John Mc-Cann is another member of the cast who is sharing in the honors and Miss Fields, Miss Knowles, William McVie and Jack Bennett are others who are worthy of special mention. See the play and laugh yourself tired.

THE STRAND
There are so many big features scheduled for the week that space hardly permits recording them at this time. Montagu Love, one of Lowell's biggest film favorites, will appear in Thursday night only. He will appear on the stage and later will hold a reception to his many Lowell friends in the theatre lobby. Be on hand and meet him. He is anxious to renew old acquaintances here. His last visit here, in company with June Elvidge, will recall the many pleasant features of his appearance at The Strand. He is coming at the personal invitation of General Manager Soricco, and earnest solicitation of his many admirers here.
The management is pleased to announce that through a special arrangement the Chaplin comedy, "A Day's Pleasure," will be held over for the remainder of the week. This will be glad news to the many who were unable to attend The Strand during the first part of the week. And to add to the pleasures anticipated by the patrons, there will be two other big features on the week-end program. Engaging with music on Thursday, Alice Lake and an all-star cast will appear in "Should a Woman Tell?"

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrh of the Ears, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Farmont (Blood-strengthening), and add to it 1 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.
This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Choked nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucus soon dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare.
Costs little and is pleasant to take.
Anyone who has Catarrh of the nose or ears, is hard of hearing, or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Adv.

dramatic, intensely human story of a New England fisher girl faced with the problem of whether to reveal or not, to the man she loved more than her life, the secret of her youth. It's a high-grade, dramatic screen offering, that is sure to appeal to all.
Peggy Hyland, another big local screen favorite, in "The Web of Chance," will be seen on the same bill, and the remainder of the program will be rounded out with a new comedy and the latest Universal Weekly.
Next week the Mack Sennett Bathing Girls will appear in person, in connection with the film feature, "Yankee Doodle in Berlin." The double novelty, a dazzling combination of feminine loveliness and a filmed satire of convulsing, yet heroically patriotic plot will be revealed to amusement seekers when this feature is presented. It is being shown here for the first time outside of the big theatric centers and will unquestionably attract captivating audiences at all performances.
of Viola Dana in "The Willow Tree,"
and Bessie Love in "Pegeen."

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
The triple feature program at the Merrimack Square theatre the first half of this week is making a decided hit and with unquestionably great capacity audiences at all performances.
and Bessie Love in "Pegeen."

THE OWL THEATRE
Today's performances are the last for Charlie Chaplin in "A Day's Pleasure" which with Bessie Barriscale in "The Undercurrent" and Guy Emery in "The Undercurrent" have been turning them away at the Owl Theatre. So often, it has been said, that the show and that show should be seen that the public is not inclined to take it seriously but in all seriousness it can be said of this show that it will be to regret it. There are four showings of Chaplin at 1.15, 1.45, 7.15 and 9.15 and being continued until there is no chance of missing it.

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.
Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.
If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.
Pain in the back, headache, loss of condition, nervousness, are often early symptoms of kidney trouble.
Delay starting treatment, the Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.
Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.
However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send 10 cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention The thing. Patrons arriving by 7.30 in the evening see the entire program.

Scheduled for Thursday are two big favorites. The first deals with the well known adage. Beatrice Mitchell in "The Heart of Juanita" in six parts is the added attraction. Pathe News and Hall Room Boys will supply the fun.
When crook meets crook it is highly probable that some of the super-wealthy are going to be relieved of portion of their surplus riches. But in "Burglar by Proxy" Jack Pickford's latest picture which will be shown beginning Thursday, one of the crooks is a conscientious objector.
As Jack Robin, wealthy man, in love with Dorothy Mason, Pickford plays the part of a boy who turns burglar to recover business plans stolen from Dorothy's father by her father.
Jack's alliance with Spider, a notorious housebreaker, leads him into a series of complications which always make him appear before Dorothy as a thief despite her earnest desire to believe he is a respectable youth.
Dorothy hears him tell Jack about the robbery and she then confesses Jack with the information that she now is convinced that he is a full-fledged thief. Jack's denials are met with contempt by Dorothy who informs him that unless he returns the articles immediately she will report him to the police. Jack does some quick thinking, smashes an expensive stained glass window, dishevels his hair and invents a weird story about his "valer" catching a thief.
The story is swallowed "whole" by members of the party. But Dorothy is more convinced than ever that he is a crook. It is too much story of an honest young man, she decides.

THE SIMPLE LIFE FOR BURGLAR'S BRIDE

N.E.A. Staff Special SPOKANE, Jan. 14.—Being the wife of a bank holdup, escaped convict and alleged murderer has lost its glamor for pretty 20-year-old Leta Clark, known to police here as the "Burglar's Bride."

Leta, girl wife of Chester Clark, alias Leo Hartman, arrested in Marysville, Cal., charged with the murder of William Mitchell, a negro, is held here on the further charge of having planned the holdup of the Union Park bank early in December.

"I won't betray Chester," she defiantly told the detectives, soon after her arrest in Portland, as she was seeing with part of the bank loot.

The glitter and excitement of the life still held her.

It caught her first two years ago, in Stevenson, Washington. She married Clark.

It held her through the Hillsboro,
Ore., bank robbery, through Clark's 10-year sentence to the Oregon state penitentiary, through his escape a month later, through his nightly street car holdups and final bank stickup here.

"But I'm through now," she sobbed at the city jail, as Clark failed to come to her rescue and her parents ignored her request for aid.

"I'm going to get my marriage annulled as soon as I get out of this scrape."

"And, believe me, no more excitement for me," I'm through.

"The simple life—and an honest one with honest folks—from now on."

the auspices of the Maples, a club with quarters in Coburn street, was held most enjoyable evening. In the early part of the evening concert numbers were given by the orchestra and during intermission musical selections were given by James Corrigan and Thomas Doyle.

The officers of the evening were as follows: James Cawley, general manager; James Carroll, assistant general manager; Thomas Doyle, floor director;

O'Hare, chief aid, and William Chell, treasurer.

The officers of the club are: John Cawley, president; Arthur Roddy, vice president; William Chell, treasurer,

LOWELL NORMAL SCHOOL

Recommends Purchase of Land For Future Growth

STATE HOUSE, Boston, Jan. 14.—
Purchase of a tract of land comprising 143,214 square feet, adjoining the State Normal school at Lowell, is recommended by Payson Smith, the commissioner of education, in a special report submitted to the legislature this afternoon.

This land referred to is what is known as the Parker estate, and Commissioner Smith recommends that it be purchased in order to make adequate provision for future growth of the normal school, as well as for protecting the present property of the state. His report is as follows:—
"In conformity with chapter 28 of the General Acts of 1915, I beg to make the following report with reference to the feasibility and desirability of the purchase of land for the use of the State Normal school at Lowell.
"The Lowell school occupies a tract of land containing 143,857 square feet.
This area, while fairly adequate for the present needs of the school, does not make possible any extension of the activities of the institution.
"All of the State Normal schools, with the exception of Lowell, Salem, and the Massachusetts Normal Art school, have dormitories. Provision for dormitory accommodations is a generally recognized means of stimulating attendance at normal schools and of improving their influence and the efficiency of their work. At present it does not appear necessary to erect a dormitory in Lowell. Should the area from which the schools draw their students expand, and the enrollment increase, it would then probably become necessary to erect a dormitory.

In this event additional land will be needed.

"As compared with the area available for campus in connection with State Normal schools in general, and in comparison with other State Normal schools in Massachusetts, the campus surrounding the State Normal school at Lowell is considerably restricted. An extension of this area would increase the value of the school's work as determined by those activities that can be carried on out of doors.

"Adjacent to the tract of land now owned by the state is the so-called Parker estate, comprising an area of 143,214 square feet. This is the only contiguous land now available for an extension of the property of the Normal school. The Bay State Cotton Corporation has purchased a tract of land separated from the Normal school by the Parker estate. The erection of a factory and warehouses by this corporation has brought a large industrial development into close proximity with the school. It is reasonable to suppose that this development will stimulate the sale of any available land adjacent to the property of the corporation.

"It would seem desirable, therefore,
as a means of providing for possible extensions of the school and for the purpose of securing adequate protection for the property of the state, that a part, or all, of the Parker estate be acquired by the Commonwealth."

Over at the Lowell police station—where revolvers of every size and description can usually be found—there is today a small .22-calibre pistol. It isn't loaded and it's not in particularly good condition; one doubts if it could be fired at all. But this self-same little "gat" caused considerable excitement late yesterday when a little lad at the Varnum school suddenly whipped it from his pocket and pointed it at one of his playmates.

No one knows where he got it, because he wouldn't tell. Anyway, the teacher told the janitor, the janitor phoned the police, and now the revolver is at the station aforesaid, where it will probably remain.

LOWELL MASONIC CLUB

The 14th annual meeting of the Lowell Masonic club was held yesterday,

president, W. L. Chapman; treasurer, C.
H. Clogston; secretary, Matthew Johnston; directors, L. A. Darby, W. H.
Howe, R. G. Dudley, W. A. Parker and L. J. Chase.

It cost $3,000.00 to bring the elec-

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS
A feature of the last meeting of the members of Court Middlesex, 23, F. of A., was the installation of officers, which was presided over by Deputy Grand Chief Ranger Francis Murphy of Court Gen. Dinnon. The men who took the oath of office were as follows: James J. Dunn, chief ranger; Patrick F. Kennedy, sub-chief ranger; Michael McNiff, treasurer; J. J. Magee, financial secretary; Thomas F. Quinn, recording secretary; D. Dinnon, senior woodward; John O'Neill, junior woodward; James Carty, senior beadle; Francis Donovan, junior beadle; J. H. Condon, J. T. Geary, J. Kenebeck, trustees; J. W. Downing, lecturer; Dr. E. J. Welch, physician.

To prevent the "singing" of telephone or telegraph wires passing over houses, these are muted by putting on them small olive-shaped pieces of secretory; Thomas F. Quinn, recording lead, or fitting corks on to them.

CATARRH DOES HARM

Whether It Is of the Nose, Throat, or Other Organs, Get Rid of It.

Catarrh of the nose or throat when it becomes chronic weakens the delicate lung tissues, deranges the digestive organs, and may lead to consumption. It impairs the taste, smell and hearing, and affects the voice. It is a constitutional disease and requires a constitutional remedy. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which by purifying the blood removes the cause of the disease and gives permanent relief. This alternative and tonic medicine has proved entirely satisfactory to thousands of families in three generations.

RECEPTION TO MISS SPAULDING

Miss Spaulding was showered with congratulations, best wishes and appropriate gifts, among which was $40 in gold. In the course of the afternoon numerous friends from surrounding towns called to offer congratulations. Luncheon was served and an entertainment program was given.

The Brunswick
ALL PHONOGRAPHS IN ONE

for THE SEVEN AGES OF MAN

"THEN-A SOLDIER"

THE returned Soldier having been stirred into fighting action by martial music has discovered its genuine value. Music with true tone holds for him indescribable charm.

Opera with its historic background—sweet ballads of by-gone days—stirring marches that thrill his soul! These, together with the popular jazz dances, are all perfectly reproduced on The Brunswick.

When The Brunswick made its advent into the world of music a sensation was recorded. New day phonograph music had come at last! This was made possible by the Brunswick Method of Reproduction, composed of two scientific features—the Ultona and the Tone Amplifier.

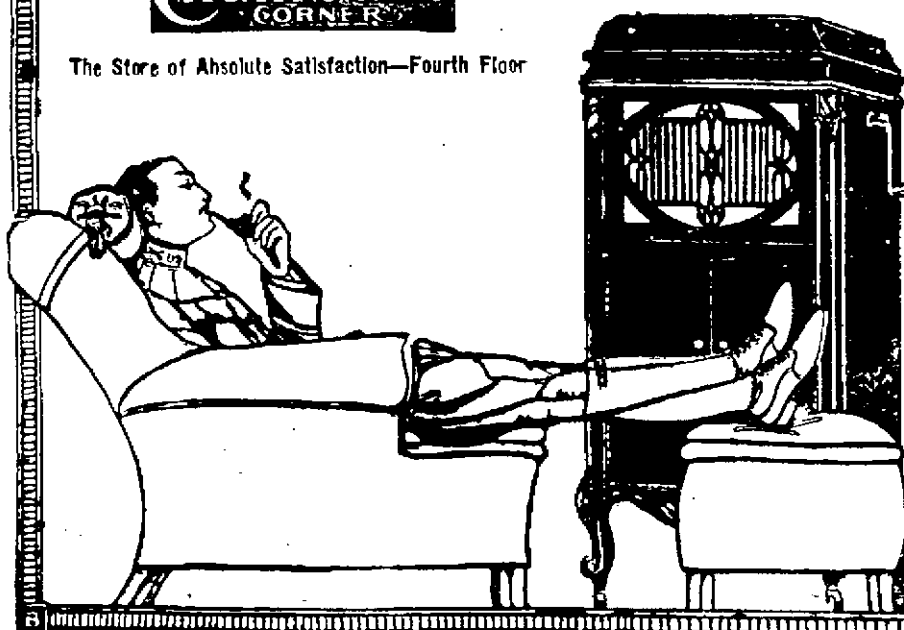

The ULTONA plays all records truer, finer, sweeter. It is not a makeshift contrivance but involves a genuine principle of sound. A slight turn of the hand presents the right needle, diaphragm and weight for playing any record.

The TONE AMPLIFIER is an oval shaped vibrant tone chamber. Like the sound board of a fine piano or violin it is made entirely of wood and free from metal. Thus it gives the requisite tonal volume and eliminates all harsh, thin, metallic sounds. It meets all advanced acoustical and musical laws.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton

"Bzz-z-z-z-z!" Nancy and Nick heard the telephone wire buzzing beside them. That meant Mr. and Mrs. Someone was calling Mr. and Mrs. Someone Else.

The twins had climbed to the very top of a telephone pole (green shoes helping, and magical mushroom guiding) they had an idea; and a very good one it was, although it never occurred to them that they were cavers.

They had looked everywhere for Jacko, their monkey, and he was still missing. But they thought that if anyone far off had seen him, they would likely mention it to their friends on the telephone. So up they had climbed to listen.

"Hello!" It was Cynthia Sparrow's voice that answered the ring.

"Hello, Cynthia! This is Sally," came the other voice. "I called up row, in a pleased voice. "I've got a treat for you. Jacko just saved some white lettuce seed in the garden, and then watered it, so hurry over before the sun dries it. Good-bye."

"Bzz-z-z-z-z!" went the wire, ringing off.

Then the twins climbed down the pole as quickly as they could and ran to the house. Next they ran into the garden with something and were ever so busy for a while.

When Mr. and Mrs. El Sparrow and family arrived, Mrs. Sally Sparrow was sitting up in a tree scolding for dear life; for right over the lettuce bed was an old wire window screen. No delicious seeds for them that day.

ANNUAL MEETING YESTERDAY OF THE LOWELL GENERAL HOSPITAL AND ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Lowell General Hospital Association was held in Middlesex hall yesterday afternoon. When The Day Is Over headache, backache and worry, turn to the right prescription, one gotten up by Dr. Pierce fifty years ago.

When the household cares and the worries of everyday life have dragged you down, made you unhappy, and there is nothing in life but

Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening, bearing-down pains, irregularities, pelvic inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Dr. Pierce knows, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it in liquid or tablet form.

Coolidge Not To Act in Controversy

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Governor Coolidge today wrote the chamber of commerce at Peabody that he was without power to interfere in the controversy in which the public trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street railway, jitney operators and the city are involved.

He had been asked to take steps to prevent the trustees from discontinuing street car service at Peabody and Salem tonight, because of unprofitable business said to be due to motor bus competition.

Continued

A protest against the industrial council's bill, now before the reichstag, began to gather before noon. Soon every street leading to the Tiergarten was crowded with masses of people carrying red flags and placards. Anticipating a demonstration before the reichstag building, the authorities had surrounded the building with public security guards and machine gunners, who barred all approaches. As time passed the crowd was joined by striking tram employees and soon inflammatory speeches were begun by agitators.

Machine Guns Used
Attempts were made by the guards to disperse the mob, but it was headless of warnings from the police. At last the mob, regardless of the machine gunners and other defenders of the building, made a rush against the police lines, trying to disarm the guards and disable the machine guns.

When it was seen the mob could not be checked in any other way, the guards opened fire. The shooting was at close range and the front of the building was littered with dead and wounded. The most severe casualties were inflicted on the crowd which approached from the Simonstrasse side of the structure. Order was soon restored.

10 Bodies Picked Up
The reichstag continued its sitting until 5 o'clock, at which time it was announced 10 bodies of persons killed in the fight had been brought into the court of the building.

Rifle and machine gun fire was opened on the mob at 3:40 o'clock and lasted five minutes. It was most severe around the west portal of the building. Later the correspondent of the Associated Press counted at least 20 men lying in the outskirts of the Tiergarten, apparently wounded. When the troops began firing the crowd ran in all directions. At the sound of the guns, members of the lower house of the reichstag left the assembly chamber and crowded into the lounging room, where there was intense excitement.

General Firing Began
Provocation for firing upon the crowd was furnished by its attempt to storm the west entrance of the building. A score of men attacked several guards and wrenched their rifles away from them just as soldiers rushed up, and then general firing began. When the mob ran into the street fronting the south side of the edifice, soldiers stationed there suspected they would be attacked and immediately opened a fusillade. Six slightly wounded civilians were carried into the Reichstag building, a dozen others were transferred to the guard house near the Brandenburg gate and a number were carried off by members of the sanitary corps.

Reichstag Adjourned
The reichstag temporarily adjourned amid great confusion. President Ebert, being obliged to leave the chair as he was unable to control the situation. Members of various parties engaged in violent recriminations, and members of the cabinet left the chamber. A shot fired from a point directly in front of the Bismarck monument entered the huge glass door leading to the lobby which was crowded with agitated deputies, the bullet passing a few feet from the spot where the correspondent was in conversation with Herr Stresemann, a national liberal member of the reichstag.

When the troops dispersed, the crowd outside the building swarmed into the Unter den Linden.

After a short recess, the house visibly quieted down, and President Ebert, rising from his seat, told the deputies the day's casualties had reached a total which would occasion profound regret, and that further deliberations could, under the circumstances, hardly be expected to continue with the necessary calm. He suggested an adjournment until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The deputies received the announcement standing and then left the chamber.

Independent socialist leaders plan to continue demonstrations whenever the industrial council's bill is up for debate, and it is expected the climax will be reached on Thursday, which is the anniversary of the deaths of Dr. Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, radical leaders, who were slain while being taken to Moabit prison.

The entire missions arriving here today are reported to have indicated their intention to call upon their governments for military protection if demonstrations here are threatening.

While the number of dead was announced as 10 early this evening, it seems probable that the fatalities will exceed this total. Some of the wounded lay in the Tiergarten for a considerable time after the shooting, although many were carried off quickly by the sanitary corps and placed in nearby hospitals.

As the national assembly was holding its sitting in the chamber, in the inner centre of the big granite pile, the assembly members heard only faint reports of the shots that were fired. Gradually news of the clash reached the chamber and an exodus followed into the corridors, into which a score of men from the mob succeeded in penetrating and immediately started a general harangue. Up to the press gallery the excitement was equally intense.

One Soldier Killed
The government admits the loss of one member of the troop of guards, killed in the fighting, while several are missing.

The big oak-paneled door which gives access to the west wing of the reichstag building was smashed during the attempted rush. It was the prompt resistance of the public security troops on guard that prevented an entrance which would result in the invasion of the chamber by the mob. Through this door a large calibre bullet fired from the ranks of the mob found its way and also passed through a second door into the lobby, crowded with members.

that it might get a hearing at the state house.

Meeting in Detail
The meeting was called at 10:10 with all members present.

The following citizens were chosen for jury service at the superior court now in session in Cambridge, beginning Jan. 20, Commissioner Salmon drawing the names:

John H. Kilvan, 73 Moore, book-keeper.

Napoleon Grandchamps, 12 Arthur avenue, clerk.

Wm. J. McCuskey, 7 Keene, reporter.

A communication from the City Teamsters' union asked for a daily wage of $5 to become effective as soon as possible. The letter was laid on the table with the understanding it will be considered at a later date.

The mayor said that he had received a similar request informally from members of the health department. All of these requests will be considered at a public hearing later.

Supt. Redmond Welch of the police department reported favorably on a petition for a certificate of incorporation from the Liberty Square Social and Athletic club and the matter was referred to the secretary of the commission.

A vote offered by the commissioner of finance appropriating $17,272 from the general treasury for the liquidation of accounts and bills owed by the city for the fiscal year of 1919 was passed without dissent. The mayor explained that this money is surplus revenue for 1919.

Approve Janitors' Pension Bill
The council voted to approve the petition of the janitors of the public buildings department that the city accept an act for their pensioning.

The mayor said that this act was exactly like that accepted by last year's council for the janitors of the school department. The council will

"Newsies" Ball at Associate

Hall Was Big Event—

Everybody Happy

Extra! Extra! Extra!!!

Read all about it!

Several hundred Lowell people missing from their homes last evening!

They went to the Newsies' first annual ball in Associate Hall.

And they all had a "wonderful" time.

"Newsies" from the four corners of the city were among "those present."

Mayor and Mrs. Perry D. Thompson and members of the city government were there, too.

The proceeds of the ball will go towards the forming of a real, live, up-to-the-minute newsboys' organization in Lowell, with clubrooms in the downtown district.

But to return to the ball itself, or rather, to the concert program which preceded dancing.

Johnny Smiler came next with "I Know What It Means to Be Lonesome."

You've got nothing on us, Johnny—we've been lonesome ourselves.

"Fatsy" Sullivan, far-famed newsboy soprano, closed the program with "Carolina Sunshine." The choruses were sustained by a sextet composed of

ALL-FOR-LOWELL DINNER MONDAY EVENING

The second big gathering in connection with the expansion and reorganization campaign of the Lowell board of trade is the All-for-Lowell dinner to be held in Memorial hall next Monday evening. With a wealth of out of town speakers, guaranteed to leave impressions similar to that created by George Fugan of Albany at last week's smoke talk, the dinner will be one of the most brilliant affairs the city ever has enjoyed. Invitations have been sent alike to men and women and it is expected that fully 500 citizens will answer the call. With the invitations have been sent re-mailing post cards securing reservations and the committee in charge urges prompt decision that its work may be simplified as much as possible. Lowell has undertaken to capitalize the spirit of co-operation and service developed by the war through the organization of a vital central body, with a new outlook which will be community-wide in membership and service and the dinner next Monday evening will fire a perfect salvo of big guns to inaugurate the intensive drive for membership which winds up the campaign next week. The American city bureau, in charge of the campaign, has secured three men who are widely known throughout the country for their force and ability to put over a thought which will stick. They are Glenn Frank of New York city, Dr. Frank Crane and Champe A. Andrews. Mr. Frank will speak on "The New Spirit in Business." He is considered an authority on business, community and chamber of commerce questions. He was associated recently with Edward A. Pflene of Boston in planning for the discussion of after-war problems at the international congress of chambers of commerce. While his name may not be a household word in Lowell, his reputation is far reaching. Dr. Crane is a nationally known editorial writer and speaker. He is noted for his unusual manner of presentation, delightful humor and wholesome philosophy. Mr. Andrews is one of the leading textile manufacturers of the south. He is a resident of Chattanooga and has a large mill there, as well as banking and business interests in Porto Rico. He is enthusiastically interested in the modern type of civic-commercial organization. There also will be local speakers, limited in time to 15 minutes. The committee in charge, headed by Paul B. Chandler, has arranged for good singing and other entertainment and delightful social intercourse will be afforded. "What about the permanence of the Lowell chamber of commerce?" said Lewis Eddy, director of the campaign today. "In the minds of those who have examined the plans of the campaign, there is of course, no such question," he continued. "However, others have and will ask it, and I am glad of the opportunity to point out certain obvious facts. "A chamber of commerce is an organization whose life depends upon the activity and co-operation of its membership. A board of directors without the support of the membership is impotent. Consequently the plan of organization of a chamber of commerce which looks forward to permanence and constantly increasing strength, must deal first, last and all the time with the membership. "One gentleman remarked the other day after a careful discussion of the plans for expanding the chamber of commerce, that the program adopted is in many respects the reverse of that which has been followed heretofore in some places. "The new members who will join the reorganized board of trade will be eager and insistent that the new body do something. It has been the practice in some chamber of commerce campaigns, after the members have been enlisted, to promptly forget them. After this campaign not a day will elapse before the call will go out for members to elect the directors. As soon as this is done and the officers have been chosen the members will again be called upon to answer the question: "What is the chamber of commerce going to do?" "When each member of the chamber has made his or her answers to this question, the membership as a whole will have given the directors a well defined program to which they are pledged. "The next question before the membership is 'Who will carry this program through?' Again the answer must come from the membership. The board of directors is a directing body and the membership is a working body. "Out of the program of work will come carefully defined specific tasks for the committees to do. There will be no standing committees and no waiting committees. Each assignment that is given to a committee will be explicit in directing what is to be done and when, and it is the business of the manager of the chamber, of the president, and of the board of directors to see that the committees keep steadily on their jobs. "The only way to insure the permanence of a voluntary organization of men is to keep them busy and interested. When a man has served on a committee or accomplished some specific service for the community he is proud of it. He becomes an interested and loyal member of the chamber, ready to respond to any call that comes to him. A man working on a committee for some particular purpose is brought into intimate touch with associated problems of the community that demand attention; so that no man can work in a chamber of commerce without gaining a wider vision of the city's needs and a constantly growing interest and loyalty to the larger purposes of the organization of which he is a member. "The ways and means that have been discovered to make effective the voluntary service of a large group of citizens are the result of long study and experience. They have within the last two or three years been given something akin to scientific analysis and definition and have worked into a definite organization program. "The executive management of the chamber of commerce will naturally conduct a well defined program for all the activities of the chamber for the benefit of the whole community; it should give quick response to all inquiries and requests of the members and should keep the citizens informed as to what other progressive cities in the state of the competitive field are doing and how they are doing it. "These are the plans that make the chamber of commerce permanent. These are the plans that will govern the modern chamber of commerce which Lowell will have at the conclusion of the campaign."

Arthur Platt Howard, whose death at New Haven, Conn., became known yesterday, was meteoric. He flashed from the obscurity of the unknown to the majority of the city in less than a year and for several years afterwards was a storm centre of local politics. Failure of financial ventures caused him to leave Salem four years ago, beset by attachments and libels. Howard came to Salem from New York in October, 1908, because he wanted to make good in the home of his ancestors. He started a penny daily, in which he advocated measures of municipal reform, became a candidate for mayor and in December, 1909, won the election in a five-cornered contest. Subsequently, he was a member of the board of aldermen. His newspaper failed, and several other ventures later went wrong, and in 1915 he went to Burlington, Vt., to try newspaper work in other fields.

Admiral Jellicoe at Port Royal GLADSTONE, Jamaica, Jan. 13, (via Ottawa.)—Admiral Viscount Jellicoe, accompanied by Sir Robert Borden, premier of Canada, arrived at Port Royal yesterday afternoon from Cuba, on the British battle cruiser New Zealand. They came to King's house here to call on the governor, and later returned to Port Royal.

Investigate Race Riots and Lynchings WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Investigation of recent race riots and lynchings over the country by the senate judiciary sub-committee entrusted with the inquiry under a resolution introduced by Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas, and adopted by the senate, was begun today. John R. Shilladay, executive secretary, and James W. Johnson, field secretary of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, were announced as witnesses at today's session. The sub-committee is composed of Senators Dillingham, Vermont; Walsh, Massachusetts, and Kellogg, Minnesota.

NEW JERSEY BARS JACK DEMPSEY TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 14.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion pugilist, will not be permitted to participate in any boxing contests in the state of New Jersey, John S. Smith, president of the New Jersey athletic commission, announced last night. "Jack Dempsey, prize fighter, is not good enough for the state of New Jersey," he added. The state commission, he continued, supported the action of various posts of the American legion in branding the champion as "a slacker."

Mr. Smith compared the "war record" of Dempsey who, he said, acted as a labor scout for a ship yard, with that of Georges Carpentier, the French champion who risked his life in battle and won the highest possible honors. "All red-blooded Americans should blush with shame when Dempsey's war record is mentioned," he concluded.

PRIVATE MAGUIRE HONORED Private James H. Maguire of Co. C of the state guard was the guest of honor at a dinner held last evening by the members of that company at Page's restaurant. Private Maguire is about to leave Lowell to accept a responsible position in New York state. Thirty-five members of the company were present and Private Hugh J. Molloy was toastmaster. Brief addresses were made by the toastmaster, Corp. Alvah Sturgess, Private James Staur Murphy, Capt. Edward Fisher, Capt. Royal P. White, Cook Dudley J. Page and Private Maguire. The guest of the evening was presented an appropriate remembrance by Capt. White on behalf of those present and he responded fittingly.

Certain Relief From Bronchial Asthma

Simple Home Treatment Makes Breathing Easy

Just because you start the day tired, lifeless, worn-out from loss of rest and the difficult breathing of miserable Asthma—do not think you have to stay this way long.

Be strong and well, breathe clearly and easily again by using this simple treatment known as Oxidaze, the prescription of a Worcester, Mass., physician.

For any form of Asthma where the bronchial tubes are irritated, the breathing short and difficult, its healing, relieving action is really wonderful. Sufferers who can't breathe at night and who gasp for a good, clear breath will appreciate the relief and comfort Oxidaze gives.

Oxidaze is a tablet made from essential oils which, when the patient dissolves in the mouth, almost immediately soothes the irritation, clears out the choked up air passages and enables the sufferer to breathe easily and get a real comfortable night's sleep.

It is sold by Lowell Pharmacy, Lippitt and Leasing druggists, who agree to refund the full purchase price of the first package to any sufferer who does not obtain satisfactory relief. Asthmatic sufferers should give Oxidaze a trial. It is harmless and inexpensive.—Adv.

ec. Glass Orders Adoption of Distinctive Design For Future Issues of Currency

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—In order to prevent counterfeiting and denominational raising, Secretary Glass has ordered adoption of a distinctive design for all future issues of currency, was announced today. This stand-ardization, Mr. Glass believes, would serve as a safeguard against "one of the greatest dangers to the treasury and to the public because of the multitude of designs now in use."
The denominational portraits presented for the future, some of which are now in use, are: $1, Washington;

$2, Jefferson; $5, Lincoln; $10, Jack-

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Denial by Immigration Commissioner Henry J. Skeffington that he threatened "to get the Harvard Liberal club" in a speech Monday night before the Massachusetts Press association, and a rejoinder by the club in the form of a letter to Washington asking his removal, were the developments in the controversy yesterday.
In a letter to Secretary William B.
Wilson of the department of labor in Washington, the Harvard Liberal club charged that Immigration Commissioner Skeffington "has lost his head, has proved incompetent and has brought your administration into disrepute."

TO REGULATE BAKERY WORKERS' HOURS

(Special to the Sun)
STATE HOUSE, Boston, Jan. 14.— Representative Owen E. Brennan of Lowell has filed petitions for Charles J. Hodson, legislative agent for the Massachusetts State Branch, A.F. of L., for legislation to regulate the hours of employment of bakery workers and to license janitors in charge of any building of three or more apartments.
The bill relative to bakery workers provides that except in cases of emergency it shall be unlawful to make bakery ponds in a bakery, bakery, hotel, restaurant or club between the hours of eight o'clock in the evening and four o'clock in the morning. In cases of emergency where serious suf-

MORE PENSION BILLS

It seems that another pension drive is on, not only in Lowell but in other cities of this state.

Before the legislature are bills providing for the pensioning of municipal laborers. The school janitors of Lowell have caught the craze and are having a special bill introduced to authorize the city to establish a pension system for their benefit.

It appears, according to the statement of Commissioner Murphy, that the endorsement of the council is necessary in order to have a bill of this kind introduced in the legislature at this time. If the commissioners give their approval of such a measure in the initial stage, it is to be expected that they will adopt the law if enacted, and put the new pension scheme into operation.

We sincerely believe it is time to call a halt on this pension business. On inauguration day, Mayor Thompson pleaded for economy, and it remains to be seen whether he and his fellow commissioners have any intention of practicing economy.

These pension bills will furnish a positive test of the sincerity of such professions. It may be that some of the commissioners are indebted to the school janitors for political service; but the taxpayers do not want to be mulcted for payment of such political debts in perpetuity.

It is very nice to be retired on a pension at the age at which Dr. Osler allowed that a man's usefulness had been seriously impaired. There are a great many people who would like to draw pensions at the expense of others. At present, the city is obliged to pay pensions to police officers and firemen. Both crafts have to encounter many dangers in the performance of their duty, and it has become a very general custom among municipalities throughout the country to pension both classes of public servants.

The next class most entitled to pensions is the school teachers, who give their lives to the work of training the youth of our city for careers of usefulness; but the teachers are not pensioned at the expense of the city. They have a pension system of their own which they pay for out of their rather scant earnings, as a protection against the time when they will no longer be able to work.

Would it not be somewhat provoking for the teachers to find that their services were overlooked and that the high-minded members of the municipal council voted to grant pensions to school janitors? It is worthy of note that these pension bills provide that the law becomes operative when adopted by the municipal council. All such questions should be submitted to the voters of the city in a general referendum. If the adoption rests with the council, the politicians will find a means of slipping it through despite all opposition.

The taxpayers and the voters in general have to pay these pensions and they feel that their present burdens are all they can bear. If the municipal council pushes up the taxes much farther, the small taxpayers may soon have to dispose of their property.

Pensions thus provided must be contributed in great part by men who work in factories and elsewhere, and who are themselves more in need of help than the classes to whom the pensions are paid.

It is up to the members of the municipal council to protect the interests of the city against the extension of pension systems at a time when the tax rate is bounding upward and when economy was never so imperative. Let city employees be adequately paid for their services; but call a halt on pensions.

RECOGNIZE LITHUANIA

The ancient province of Lithuania, which was mainly under Russian rule before the war, has now been organized as a separate state under a republican form of government, and appeal to the United States for recognition. Already, this new republic has been recognized by England and will probably soon be recognized by other European powers. It has all the distinctive characteristics of a nationhood which entitle it to self-determination under the decision of the peace conference.

The Lithuanians are a very ancient people forming, as they do, an offshoot of the eastern branch of the Indo-European family and one of the Baltic groups which included also the Prussian and the Lettish. The present population is probably from four to five millions. It has been greatly reduced by the war and had been previously depleted by emigration which was directed to parts of Russia, Germany, South Africa, South America and the United States. The Lithuanians are strong in this country, particularly in Pennsylvania, New York and Chicago. In New York city there are 40,000 Lithuanians, and in Chicago, 80,000, while it is estimated that the total number in this country is at least 750,000. The Lithuanians are a rugged people and generally employed in the leading industries of the country, including the coal mines, the iron works and textile factories. In Lowell, there are probably 1000 Lithuanians. They have recently protested against the Polish invasion and appealed for justice.

Recently, it appears that Polish forces have been encroaching on parts of Lithuania with the result that the Lithuanians have appealed to the peace conference and to the United States to put a stop to the Polish invasion. It is rather surprising that Poland, after securing her own freedom, should do anything to hinder or prevent a neighboring state from obtaining a like privilege. In view of the large number of Lithuanians in this country and the justice of the Lithuanian cause, we do not see any reason why the United States should not recognize this struggling republic and thus rescue it from Polish dominance on the one hand, or Bolshevik oppression on the other.

BRYAN AND THE PARTY

The republican politicians are now indulging in speculation as to what will be Mr. Bryan's course in the democratic convention. Of course, no such convention can be held without the presence of the Nebraska orator. He will be there, whether he is wanted or not, and furthermore, he can be relied upon to do more talking than any other delegate present, but that does not mean that he is to turn wrecker, as the republicans vainly would believe. He has declared that he is not a candidate for president and if he keeps to his word in this respect, then the danger of a split in the convention, so far as he is concerned, may be set down as a negligible quantity.

The republican assumption that the democrats may be relied upon to make fools of themselves has little to rest upon these days; and still less, if possible, is there to sustain the arrogant claim of the republicans that they are the only party in the nation that can conduct the government business with statesmanlike sagacity and foresight.

The days of the big trusts are gone by and the influence of their bundle is not so potent in deciding election contests as it was when the republican party was ruled by such men as Mark Hanna and Senator Tom Platt. The only remnant of the old regime still left, is represented by Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania.

But a few days ago, Mr. Bryan made the statement that Senator Walsh's voice is the only voice of progress heard in the east. He evidently referred to the senator's recent statement of principles which should find a place in the democratic platform.

This statement by Senator Walsh was published in The Sun and was not at all radical. If Bryan does not go beyond its limits, he will not be regarded as dangerous. All parties are now talking of humanizing or democratizing industry, and while these terms are very general, it is likely that some definite action in that direction will be advocated by both political parties.

STARVATION IN VIENNA

People returning from Vienna tell of the most horrifying conditions there, as a result of the lack of food and fuel. It is estimated that thousands are slowly starving to death and that their tortures are intensified by the cold, as the allowance of fuel is so meagre that even those who have fuel are in danger of freezing to death.

is far from meeting the general demands. The allies have a heavy responsibility to meet in saving the people of Vienna and other cities in Austria from starvation; but apparently, the measures thus far adopted are wholly inadequate to meet the most urgent necessities of the situation. It is estimated that in Vienna alone, there are 150,000 families without any fuel for cooking purposes, and as many more who have no food to cook.

Even people of wealth have written letters to friends in this country stating that they are waiting their death which, in their affliction, comes only after long and terrible suffering. There may be controversy over the League of Nations and other questions; but over the necessity of extending relief to some of the central European countries and to Armenia, all are agreed.

Although rather dilatory in the matter, congress has authorized relief measures which, if promptly applied, may save millions of lives in central Europe.

REPUBLICAN FAILURE

A republican congress has delayed and then bungled the railroad situation, and although the return of the common carriers to their owners is but a few weeks distant, the railroad return bill is still in conference between the two houses and at best will not meet eventually the problem of transformation from government to private operation.

A redistribution of the war burden was advocated by the administration, following the signing of the armistice, but there has been no readjustment to meet the changed conditions and the partial lifting of the unprecedented burdens of world war.

The republican congress has barely scratched the surface of the great question of international finance. It passed the Edge bill, authorizing the creation of corporations to foster the export trade of the country, but it is not seriously contending that this measure will meet the trade demands of the near future.

Practically nothing has been done to meet the pressing issues between capital and labor. With industrial unrest making trouble in almost every section of a nation just emerged from war, congress has indulged in political debates and offered no constructive program.

HAYS EXCORIATED

That was certainly a severe ex-coriation which Secretary Glass of the treasury department, gave Will H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee in refuting his slanderous charge that the name of every buyer of Liberty bonds was put on the democratic mailing list for the forthcoming campaign. Showing that these lists are not available for any purpose except the sale of government securities, Mr. Glass called upon Hays to furnish proof or else apologize. The latter made reply in a half evasive, half apologetic way; but Mr. Glass did not propose to let him wriggle out of his false charge in any such manner. He took up Hays' reply and exposed the falsity of his charges in the most scathing terms. In all probability, Mr. Hays will be more careful, in the future, in his references to the treasury department. It is the peculiar function of the chairman of the national republican committee to attack the administration, with or without cause. In some of his onslaughts, he has been badly worsted.

The postal clerks are seeking a readjustment of their salaries with provision for retirement and sick leave with pay, on the ground that although the cost of living has nearly doubled since the beginning of the war, they have received but a 25 per cent increase. All the postoffice men, and especially the carriers, work hard and should receive fair compensation. Other classes of government employees less deserving are receiving much more liberal treatment than the postal clerks.

It is safer and wiser for people driving autos or motorcycles to avoid streets crowded with coasters. If the vehicle does not run over anybody, some of the coasters are liable to run into it and get seriously injured.

SEEN AND HEARD

Conan Doyle thinks there is alcohol in the other world. Tut, tut, man. You mean spirits.

The electric heater is a great invention when the steam heat fails you on a cold morning.

That New York man who bought his wife an $55,000 coat chose a more effective means than propaganda for the making of radicals.

When you hear a clerk say something on Monday morning and then hear a department head spring it at a council meeting on the following day, it kinder makes you sit up and take notice.

Irreverent Soldier

John Hall of Hutchinson, Kan., one of the soldiers now at Pittsburg, Kan., on account of the strike situation, says while "over there" last year he was shown an old church.

"A great many people sleep here," said the guide, showing the inscriptions in the floor.

"Same way in America," replied Hall. "Why don't they get a more interesting preacher?"—Stars and Stripes.

Things to Remember

Fresh air is as necessary to health as pure and nourishing food.

People should not sleep in overcrowded rooms, nor with closed windows.

Homes and workshops must be clean and thoroughly ventilated. Dirt and impure air are the allies of tuberculosis.

Persons with colds or coughs of long standing or persons who are losing in weight or strength should consult a doctor or go to a dispensary or clinic. It is dangerous to wait.

The large majority of people probably have had tuberculosis in their systems, but they do not become sick with it because they take good care of their general health and strength.

And when the wheat is failed and blown and gathered in its shifting mound,

Who asks for bread receives a stone, for by the stone the grain is ground.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Lowell has its quota of self-made men, as no one will deny. One meets them everywhere—in hotels, clubs and, of course, in the shops where the tonorial artist plies his trade. It was in a barber shop, not long ago, that I chatted with Thomas Lees, manager of the Lowell division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co., who can surely claim to be a member of the "self-made" contingent; for many people can remember when "Tom" was just a conductor in the days before electricity had replaced Old Dobbin on the local street railway. After we had given up speculating as to how much longer we must wait before friend barber would be at liberty to attend to our needs, the conversation drifted to the topic of jitneys, and Mr. Lees pointed out some of the reasons why the local road is so strongly opposed to this kind of competition. "Every dollar which the jitneys take from the road in business makes it just so much harder for the company to pay a reasonable dividend to its stockholders in return for money invested," he declared. "If the company is able to pay the stockholders and still retain a surplus, then it becomes possible to reduce fares. And a reduction of fares is what we are looking forward to. But if jitneys are allowed to continue taking the business away from the road, there will be no surplus, and fare reductions cannot be made."

The appointment of Representative Owen E. Brennan of this city on the legislative committee on banks and banking gives the popular legislator an exceptionally important position in state house circles as this committee is generally conceded to be one of the most vital of legislative machinery. To it are referred matters pertaining to banking regulations and the committee is even more important in Massachusetts than in other states because of the high calibre of this commonwealth's banking laws—a fact that has won the state nation-wide recognition—and this high calibre must be retained by the successive legislatures which enact the laws relative to banking year after year. Lowell bank men are particularly pleased with Representative Brennan's appointment as it insures them a man at the state house looking after their interest as well as those of the public at large.

It is expected that Lowell will be well represented at the exemplification of the fourth degree of the Knights of Columbus in Boston next month and Lowell men, as usual, will figure prominently in the deliberations of the provincial assembly. Faithful Navigator Andrew Molloy of the local assembly, one of the most enthusiastic and earnest K. of C. workers in this section, is making preparations for Lowell's part in the affair and it is safe to say that before he retires from office he will have an exemplification of the fourth degree here in Lowell for all New England.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Mrs. J. Christman Proved That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Remedy for this Trouble.

Binghamton, N. Y.—"I was in a very nervous condition for over a year, my mind was gloomy, I could see no light on anything, could not work and could not have anyone to see me. Doctor's medicine did not help me and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended. I took it and am now well. I recommend it to all afflicted with nervous prostration."—Mrs. J. CHRISTMAN, 193 Oak Street, Binghamton, New York.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from nervous prostration, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and dizziness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

Women who suffer from any such ailments should not fail to try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Low Marcelled Pompadours
Are Favored by Actress
For Informal Occasions

BY GLORIA SWANSON
(Famous Players-Lasky Star)

This type of coiffure is a favorite of mine, particularly for informal around-the-house wear. Although the process sounds a bit complicated when described, it belies its description. I start a bang over the forehead which should be marcelled, too. Now wave the sides and draw them back tightly over the temples, but allow the sides to puff out full over the ears.

Dress the back before turning the attention to the front. Draw the hair back above the bang in a single full sweep ending at the nape of the neck. Turn all ends under and fasten with a net.

This coiffure is most effective with a morning dress. It gives an effect of unstudied care which makes it doubly appropriate.

Satisfactory With Hats
Another coiffure, having much the same lines I have called the centre marcelled part with low pompadour, because it is a combination of these two simple types of hairdress. It can be effectively worn for any informal occasion and I find it particularly satisfactory for wear when I am forced to put on and take off hats.

Part your hair an inch in depth in the centre and draw it back in a low pompadour. Marcel the sides. Dress the front first, then the sides.

Not Almost Necessary
Curl the ends and dress the back, permitting the curled ends to cluster a little above the low pompadour.

As in the previous styles of hairdress, a net is of service in keeping the hair in place after it is dressed. Where a hat is worn and frequently removed and replaced, this accessory is almost a necessity.

JAPAN AND PEACE PACT IN CHINA

(By RODNEY GILBERT)
(Leading Journalist in Orient)

A treaty, like a legal document, is not technically perfect if more than one meaning can be read into it. In nearly every agreement or understanding between Occidental and Oriental nations flaws have been found because of different interpretations.

This is particularly true regarding the Shantung provision of the Paris Peace treaty.

It is the part of Japanese policy abroad to insist that in the inheritance of Germany's "economic rights" in Shantung she receives something very trifling and altogether incommensurate with her services in the war. In the Orient, however, it is clearly understood that the term "economic rights" means everything that the Japanese could possibly want.

In the Occident an economic right means simply the right to do business subject to law, local jurisdiction and in accord with the best local interests. In China, however, there exists a convention known as extraterritoriality, which means that where an outsider is permitted to trade he trades subject to the laws and traditions of his own country, in his own interest or the interest of his nationals, and that the legality of his business or of his personal conduct is not judged by the Chinese among whom he lives but by his own authorities.

It has been proven a thousand times over that the herds of Japanese residents in Manchuria, Fukien and Shantung have consistently abused their extraterritorial rights to gain a monopoly of trade and for their own interests.

The rights which Japan acquires through the Paris provisions and through negotiations with a small group of pro-Japanese officials who at the time represent the government of China, include a monopolistic hold upon one railway, the Tsingtao-Tsinanfu line, 250 miles long, and contracts for the construction of two others. Japan has already used the former German line for the establishment of Japanese colonies along its whole length; for the movements of Japanese soldiers; for the illegal export of copper cash; for the establishment of a freight monopoly through the institution of a privileged transport company granting discriminatory rates, and through the placing of Japanese police and officials who break down Chinese authority and now tax Chinese trade crossing the railway zone.

These same Paris terms give Japan

MRS. ERNEST CHARETTE

RED PILLS were my mother's favorite remedy, and she did not cease recommending them to me. I gave them a trial and they relieved me of general weakness, poor circulation, inward trouble and other minor ailments. I had started to work when very young, and although I was favored with a strong constitution, the strain was too much and I was unable to keep up my work. Now that I know how easy it is for me to keep strong and well by the use of RED PILLS, I am firmly resolved that I will continue taking them regularly, and not let myself become a victim of that terrible malady, which is Anæmia.

MRS. ERNEST CHARETTE,

RED PILLS are for women only. They are always sold in boxes of fifty pills, 50 cents box, 6 boxes for $2.50. See that the name of the "Franco American Chemical Company Limited" is on every box.

a port at Tsingtao with exclusive control over wharves, docks and public service properties which were formerly state property. The customs, nominally Chinese, is entirely in Japanese hands, and in some manner the port has imported and distributed enough opium in the last four years, according to the official estimates of observers of several nationalities, to have paid five times over for the cost of the Japanese military expedition which originally took Tsingtao and for all public works undertaken there during Japanese occupation.

The port of Tsingtao, at which Japan is to have a settlement embracing all existing public utilities gives her a base from which to extend her trade into the interior of Shantung. The railways into the interior, existing and projected, give her a channel through which to carry her influence into the heart of China by any method she may approve, and the monopoly on development inherited through the terms of the German treaty and confirmed by agreement with China in 1915, puts the future prosperity and well being of the whole of Shantung province at the mercy of Japanese expansionists.

The development of these holdings under extraterritorial rights might not seriously impair Chinese sovereignty or Chinese authority, if the direction of such development were in the hands of a benign people devoted to China's interests and considerate of her prestige. If the direction of development is not thoroughly benign, however, it is easy to see that China has nothing to say about it.

And Japan's record in China at large and in Shantung particularly gives the Chinese no ground for believing that Shantung is anything but a lost province, a Japanese territory in all but name.

Three out of every four Germans more than 50 years of age are women still in good health.

"NAP-A-MINIT"

Used by Dr. Gagnon in His Superior PORCELAIN DENTISTRY

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of TWO KINDS OF DENTISTRY. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old harsh method employed in this day by many dentists. Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, hindering him in his work, and making his own pain necessarily greater. Every nerve in his body is on edge—every muscle tense—he is indeed the personification of fear and pain. THIS IS DENTISTRY AS I DO NOT DO IT.

Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see restfulness and relaxation, a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor, unhindered, do his very best work. This is an example of DENTISTRY AS I DO PRACTICE IT.

This is what "Nap-a-Minit" has done for all my PATIENTS. "Nap-a-Minit" is a positive pain destroyer and absolutely eliminates all pain in dentistry. With its use, one may have teeth and roots extracted, nerves removed, cavities prepared and filled, crowns and bridge-work inserted and every conceivable kind of dental operation performed without the slightest fear or dread because IT WILL NOT HURT.

HELD AS EVADER

NEW YORK—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wealthy son of a former Philadelphia brewer, charged with evading the draft law, was placed in solitary confinement on Governors Island following his arrest at his home in Philadelphia. The youth had been hunted all over the world for two years. He is liable to 18 months imprisonment as a maximum penalty if convicted when court-martialed. His arrest brings to a close his side of the sensational "Bergdoll boys hunt." A brother, Edwin, wanted also for draft evading, is still at large. Bergdoll's father is dead.

DANCE AT DRACUT GRANGE

One of the banner events of the winter season will take place at Dracut Grange tomorrow evening, when the Vincent club, an organization of well-known Lowell young women, will stage their second annual dancing party. A large crowd is confidently anticipated by the committee in charge, who have spent several weeks in perfecting arrangements for the affair.

BELIEVE 400 LOST WITH SHIP
Only 57 Survivors of Lost
Steamer Afrique Known
To Have Landed

Hope For Others Faded During Night, as Hours Passed
Without Word

LA ROCHELLE, France, Jan. 14.
—More than 400 persons are believed to have lost their lives in
the wreck of the steamer Afrique
on Roche Bonne shoal, Bay of Bis-
cay. Only 57 survivors are known to have been landed. Hope for the rest of the passengers and crew
faded during the past night, as hour after hour passed without word.

Sailors and French colonial soldiers are the only persons from the ship known to have reached land
safely.

"It was impossible to approach the Afrique," said Captain Jounin of the steamer Ceylan, which was summoned to the scene of the wreck by wireless on Saturday, and
which attempted to rescue those on board the doomed vessel. "I remained in wireless communication
with the ship, however, and received the following message: 'I am drifting and I fear the ship
will go ashore.' Later came another message reading: 'I am
steering for a light.'"

"Then came a final message: 'We are sinking.' That is all I know about the loss of the Afrique."
Some of the rescued sailors declared that when, with great difficulty, the boats were swung out,
passengers were afraid to jump in-
to them, seeing they were already half full of water.

"THE GIRL AND THE PENNANT"

The public sale of tickets for the two presentations of "The Girl and the Pennant," to be given at the Lowell
Opera House next Monday by high school students, began at the school
this noon at 12 o'clock. Practically all seats are already sold for the evening
performance, with the exception of admission checks for the second balcony,
but there are a quantity of orchestra
and first balcony seats available for the matinee. Public sale will continue
at the school through Saturday and until
be carried on from the theatre box office.

Miss Joyce feels that the students
will score an unqualified success this year. The play, which has a splendid baseball plot, first suggested by Christy Mathewson, appeals to the boys and girls taking part and they have well entered into the spirit of the production.

F. O. Blunt has been busy with the school orchestra which will play incidental music for the play.

SPOTTED MULE AND LAUGHING ALLIGATOR

BY O. B. JOYFUL
Three years ago there was delivered
to a firm of cattle dealers at the Kansas City stockyards a puny maverick mule. A member of the firm called a
stableman and said:
"Take that thing out and scrub it with hot water and soap. Anyone who would daub up a mule with shoe
polish like that ought to have a pinch bit in his mouth the remainder of his days."

The mule was given a scrubbing.
The stableman brought him back and
said:
"Boss, them spots go clear on down
through the hide into the interior re-

Above is a close-up of the front half of Zeb.

Washin' don't do no good. They're like
the leopard's spots—they're there to stay as long as the mule does."

The spots and the mule remained at
the stockyards and in some way the mule became possessed of the name of Zeb.

Zeb began winning renown as a saddle animal. He advertised his owner's business, for every visitor asked about
him because of his spots.
Zeb is the only spotted mule in captivity or out. Zeb is the living exception to the rule that mules must be black, white or brown.

And Abe White of Fayette, Ia., has
an alligator that'll smile!

But Abe's alligator won't smile unless he's (the alligator, not Abe) is tied under the chin.
Which is probably the only way anybody can make any alligator grin. Try it on the next water you meet.

While on the 'gator subject it may be
as well to call your attention to the neat and nifty way alligators have solved the high cost of living problem.

Mr. Alligator quits eating in September, according to Abe White, and doesn't seem to feel the need of grub
until June.

During the months alligators eat,
food prices are lowest. When the old
food profiteer boosts costs of things,
Mr. Alligator quits feeding.

Quite a simple method of knocking
the high out of the cost of living, isn't
it?

his candidacy for the seat in the house

Dandruff Soon Ruins the Hair

Girls—If you want plenty of thick,
beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure
way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely.
To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night
when retiring; use enough to moisten
the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching
and digging of the scalp will stop,
and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Adv.

STRAW VOTES ON PEACE TREATY IN COLLEGES

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Mixed results were shown in the balloting in New England colleges yesterday on the ratification of the peace treaty and the League of Nations. In most of the colleges four propositions were voted upon:

- 1.—Favoring ratification without amendments or reservations.
- 2.—Opposing ratification in any form.
- 3.—Favoring ratification with the Senate majority reservations.
- 4.—Favoring any compromise which would make possible immediate ratification.

Two additional propositions were on the ballot at some of the colleges, as follows:

- 5.—Favoring a separate peace with Germany, leaving the question of a League of Nations to be settled afterwards.
- 6.—Favoring a compromise on reservations that would avoid danger of defeating ratification while still making clear that Congress has sole power to declare war, domestic questions and the Monroe doctrine are outside its jurisdiction of the League, plural votes are disqualified in any dispute in which this country is disqualified from voting and this country is to be sole judge whether its obligations have been met if it withdraws from the League.

At Harvard, both students and faculty polled the highest vote for No. 1 with No. 1 running second. Smith and Mount Holyoke, both women's colleges, also cast the highest vote for No. 4, with No. 1 second.

In the four Maine colleges, No. 4 led. Colby, Maine and Bowdoin gave second place to No. 3 and Bates to No. 1.

Boston colleges cast a majority for No. 3, with No. 2 second. At Brown No. 6 led with No. 5 second. Amherst favored No. 1, with No. 4 second. Massachusetts Agriculture college polled the heaviest vote for No. 6 with No.

second. At the last three colleges all six questions were on the ballot.

WOMEN HOLD AN ALL DAY MEETING

The women's association of the Episcopal Union church held an all-day gathering yesterday, with a sewing meeting in the forenoon and an address by Miss Harriet C. Norton of Alton, Turkey, as the feature of the afternoon program.

Fifty or more women met at the parish house at 10 o'clock and for two hours sewed on garments for the Faith Home. Luncheon was served at 12.30 under the direction of Mrs. John Stevens, Mrs. Frank Knowles, Mrs. Nathan Puleifer and Mrs. Clarence Hoyt. Men of the parish were present in large numbers. Miss Norton's address was most interesting and embraced a recital of her service in charge of orphanage work in Turkey for Armenian children during war years.

BRITISH-CANADIAN WAR VETERANS

The Lowell British-Canadian war veterans held their regular meeting at the Community club last night and elected the following officers to serve during the current year: President, J. H. Hoban; vice president, Frank Carman; financial secretary, John Hurst; treasurer, Lewis Balle; recording secretary, J. S. Davies; John Fairburn, J. H. Hoban and John Percival were named an auditing committee.

Plans were discussed for a ladies' night to be held on February 3 and the following committee were chosen to take over the management of the affair: George Wesley, John Fairburn, John Cramm and Benjamin Tattersall.

METAL FILING CASES

At the request of the state commissioner of records there have been installed recently in the office of the city clerk a number of metal filing cases for the alphabetical recording of deaths in this city from 1842 up to 1869. The cases are inflammable and as time goes on it is probable that more of them will be installed to take care not only of deaths which have occurred since 1869 but also of marriages and births.

Will Dry Days Be Sad Days?

National law that will baffle the most expert law-breaker.

The machinery will consist of two branches; one will operate in the various states of the country and the other will have districts as units. There will be a total of ten of these districts in the United States.

In each state there will be a federal prohibition director and under him there will be a number of inspectors. This state organization will be in charge of the issuance of all permits for the sale and use of non-beverage alcohol. It will keep tabs on the records of physicians, druggists, sanitarians, etc., to see that the provisions of the law are complied with.

The men who are in the district branches of the prohibition enforcement machinery will be experienced in this kind of work and will be the men who will keep a watch on bootleggers, illicit manufacturers, etc. They will form a sort of a "flying squadron" that can be transferred from one section of a district to another as their services may be needed.

In addition, of course, the Lowell police department will not relax its duties in this direction and will work in co-operation with the federal authorities in seeing that the regulations of the constitutional amendment are lived up to.

From the filmiest to the most mannish sport blouse

Every one flaunts gay color

PURPLE, turquoise, blue, rose, radiant coral—there's not a smart magazine that doesn't flash color from every page. Sport blouses, demure blouses, shimmery, sheer, dressed-up ones and those for plain work-a-day, all are set on being brightly.

The shops can't make or get fast enough, the joyous colors you've been reading about and want. It's sometimes months and months after you first hear of a new shade before you see it in the shops.

But now there's a wonderful new way to get just the smart turquoise you want for that festive little linen, the delicate yellow that your sad white crêpe de Chine's been sighing for.

You can wash them any blithe, new color you want.

This new product just washes color in

Really and truly just wash it — with Twink. Twink comes in the merriest, gayest little flakes. They whip into a brilliant lather, you pop your blouse into the shining suds, swish it about for a few minutes and all in a twinkling it gets its lovely new hue. And the precious blue georgette the sun had faded, the yellow voile that was too pale, all are Twinked back to their first freshness.

Really smart colors and they turn out right

Twink comes in the season's most fashionable shades, selected with the help of the country's authorities on color, and they turn out right every time, with never a streaky or dingy look. And so fast are these colors that you can wash your blouse several times in Lux before it comes back for its next Twinking.

In all these smart colors

Today get two or three boxes of Twink in the colors you've been reading about and wanting. Twink won't harm anything pure water alone will not harm. The department stores, your druggist, the five and ten cent stores all have Twink. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass. (Makers of Lux.)

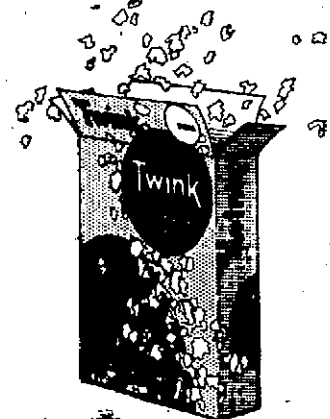

Flash Bright Red Navy Blue Dark Green
Pink Dark Red Yellow Light Gray
Coral Baby Blue Lavender Taupe
Peach Copeland Purple Beige
Old Rose Turquoise Light Green Dark Brown

You use some of the Twink colors like Lux. Others require boiling water and salt. Read directions both outside and inside the package before using.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY of NEW YORK

ment have on Lowell as far as the license commission is concerned?" the writer asked John J. Flaherty, clerk of the local license commission, the body which was the centre of interest here when wartime prohibition went into effect last July.

"It will have very little effect on us," replied Mr. Flaherty. "The law provides that beverages which contain less than one-half of one per cent. alcohol are not intoxicating and may be sold at will. That is what the local saloons are now entitled to sell and there will be no change as far as this phase of the situation is concerned when the federal amendment goes into effect."

"How many saloons are now doing business in Lowell?" he was asked.

"I don't know; we haven't kept a record of them."

Some Positive Changes
So much for what isn't going to happen. Now for some of the positive results that will affect Lowell when the amendment becomes law next Friday.

In the first place, if you are looking forward to having a good time when the rest of the city is suffering from thirst, please remember these little points in the regulations of the Volstead act which goes into effect simultaneously with the 18th amendment: All liquor for beverage purposes must be within the private residence of the possessor before January 17 and must have been owned by him prior to the first of last July. That means that if you were in the liquor business here in Lowell and had a good supply on hand last July which, of course, you were not supposed to sell, and are anticipating enjoying this for your own use after next Friday, just be sure that it's down in the cellar of your own home before Saturday, Jan. 17. If you leave it in your former place of business or in storage somewhere else, it won't be of any more use to you than the waters of the Concord river. For the law says it must be in your own residence.

Likewise, if you are a friend of somebody who has a "big stock" on hand and who has promised to share it with you, don't let it go with the word, but see to it that whatever "share" is coming to you is on your own premises before Jan. 17. Other-

In order to move any "wet stuff" after Jan. 17 you must have a permit and that permit will be issued only for non-beverage purposes.

And remember when the law says "your residence" it means the place where you are a bona fide resident. If you belong to a club and also have a home somewhere else in the city, you can't have a supply of liquor both at the club and your home because the club isn't your legal residence. So don't plan to stock up the old club locker, for again you'll be "out of luck."

Like women, liquor's place is in the home, as far as the amendment is concerned. It can be used only by the members of your family and bona fide guests. If you haven't a supply in your own home now or, at least, don't have it before Saturday, your chances for a drink after that day will be very meagre. You can't accept a drink from a friend who has a supply in any public place. You've got to go to his home. If he lives in a boarding house you've got to go to his room.

If you have a supply of liquor outside your home, say in a warehouse or in your place of business, and you do not intend to transfer this stock to your home by next Saturday, then you must report to the internal revenue bureau before Jan. 27 just how much liquor you have on hand outside your own home. Those who come under this provision will include former saloonkeepers, hotel proprietors and retail liquor dealers. Not only must such liquor be reported within 10 days after the amendment goes into effect, but if it is to be kept after Feb. 1 its owner must have a permit from the government. This permit will allow the possessor to sell the liquor as he may for non-beverage purposes to a pharmacy or wholesale druggist. The owner will also have to give a bond as long as the liquor is in his possession.

As to Medicinal Use

One of the few loopholes which remain for a person to obtain intoxicating liquor is by virtue of a physician's certificate to be presented to a druggist. But this isn't going to be the easy, care-free matter that it was in days of yore. The physician and the druggist are bound tight with red tape by the constitutional amendment so that whatever liquor may be secured through this avenue will be by the hardest kind of squeezing.

Following is an extract from the ruling of the internal revenue department on this phase of the situation:

"Physicians may prescribe wines and liquors for internal use or alcohol for external use, but in every case each prescription shall be in duplicate and both copies be signed in physician's handwriting. The quantity prescribed for a single patient at a given time shall not exceed one quart. In no case shall a physician prescribe alcoholic liquors unless the patient is under his constant personal supervision."

Lowell druggists who intend to sell liquor for medicinal purposes after the amendment goes into effect will do well to digest the following from the internal revenue department office:

"Druggists filling prescriptions shall preserve in a separate, carefully guarded file one copy of every prescription filled and once a month shall transmit to the collector of internal revenue a list showing the names of the physicians, the names of patients at the total quantity dispensed to each patient during the month. These lists shall be subject to immediate examination and frequent review in the collector's office and wherever there is indicated either that a physician is prescribing more than the normal quantity or that any patient through the services of more than one physician is procuring more than a normal quantity, the collector shall report the facts to the commissioner of prohibition and the United States attorney."

How are you going to beat that? "Well, the sum and substance of this story is that Lowell will be drier than Sahara next Friday and the tippler who made a New Year's resolution that he would not imbibe any more is going to get more active encouragement this year than at any previous time in his life. For Friday will be the beginning of Lowell's journey over what seems to be a long, long dry trail!"

What Your Kidneys Should Do For You

The kidneys are really filters, finely organized for their work of cleansing and purifying the blood, selecting and throwing out waste products which would act as poisons if permitted to remain in the system. When your kidneys are out of order, the impurities are not removed and remain to poison the system, causing backache, swollen or stiff joints, rheumatic pains, puffiness under the eyes, floating specks, biliousness, weakness and pale, waxy, dry skin.

WAS MISERABLE AND ALL TIRED OUT
"I suffered with kidney trouble and have taken many kinds of medicine without getting relief. I used to have severe pains across my back and felt miserable and all tired out, but after taking Foley Kidney Pills I am well. In fact I have not been bothered with kidney trouble since taking the pills."—Mrs. C. J. Ellis, 555 8th Ave., Sioux Falls, S. D.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

are made from the purest and finest medicines, accepted as the most helpful for kidney trouble and bladder ailments. They cost far more to make than the average kidney pill, for the high standard of their making is never deviated from, no matter how the cost of ingredients advances.

National Agreement With R.R. Employees

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Director General Hines has signed a national agreement covering rules and working conditions with the brotherhood of railway and steamship clerks, freight handlers and express and station employees. The agreement, it was announced today, is retroactive to January 1, and will continue in force during the period of federal control.

The agreement provides for time and a half for overtime after eight hours, applying to all employees except certain workers whose employment is light or intermittent, and for one day's rest each week except where operation of the individual railroads would be affected.

Brotherhood officials requested a national agreement last summer, and the subject has been under consideration since that time first by the regional directors, and later by the board of railway wages and working conditions.

Pensioning Janitors

and police departments and janitors of the school department are now entitled to pensions from the city and former employees of the water department, street department and public buildings department are drawing pensions under an act accepted by the city some time ago which provides for the pensioning of all employees who are veterans of the Civil war.

The school department janitors who are not war veterans have been under pension less than a year because the council did not accept the act providing for their pensions until last year.

The legislature passes an act not providing for the pensioning of the janitors in the local buildings department and the municipal council accepts it, there will be about a dozen men entitled to the pension after they have reached the age of 60 and have given 25 years' service to the city.

Headquarters for Waltham Watches

A splendid buffet luncheon, boxing exhibitions by local mitt artists, and entertainment numbers and "specialties" of all kinds featured the first of a series of monthly smokers held by the Bellevue club at their headquarters on Middlesex street last evening.

A large crowd of members and friends of the organization, including a delegation from the Saginaw club who were the "guests of honor," attended the event and unanimously pronounced it a complete success.

The first number on the evening's program consisted of a sparring match in which appeared "Kid" Pano and "Young" Frank Avila. The second contest introduced "Knockout" Purcell of the Bellevue club and "One Round" Trudell, representing the Saginaw delegation. In the last bout "Kid" Marshall and "Casey" Ryan were the contestants. No decisions were given.

Next came the entertainers, of whom there were many. "Scotty" Davidson opened with a Highland fling, and followed this with other expositions of the art of Terpsichore.

William Hartnett came to the fore with some "Jewish" dances, and was followed by "Red" Ward, who described his offering as "classic dancing." It sure was classic, a fling. A "butterfly" dance by Patrick Kato also met with unstinted applause.

An exhibition of eccentric juggling by William Scotland came next. They do say that William juggled 16 plates of ice cream—and when the exhibition was over no one could tell just where the cream had gone.

A pie-eating contest between H. Purcell and Walter Ray was decided in favor of Ray.

A "breakdown" by Charles Carroll made a big hit with the audience. Someone was unkind enough to remark that Carroll almost went through the floor—but probably they were just jealous.

Several song numbers were interspersed throughout the program, including selections by "Baby" Lawson, Frank Levasser and "Young" Chandler.

Finale of the musical program consisted of piano selections by Leo Sylvester.

The committee in charge of the smoker was: "Babe" Lawson, Charles Carroll and Frank Levasser.
